Arthur Watson:

He Serves Public As Hospital Chef

By MARDELL BURNS

Four and a half years short of retirement, Arthur Watson who has been head chef at Palo Alto-Stanford Hospital for 27 years sums up the years in a thesis many will envy and few can share.

He feels that his years in the hospital's kitchen have provided him with the opportunity to serve humanity — an opportunity that patients and the professional and lay staff will tell you he has used very well.

The work has been hard and the rewards many, according to Watson who was born in England and raised in Canada. He joined the hospital staff in 1932 about a year after the nucleus building was in use. At that time cooking for patients was strictly an a la carte operation. Now the staff prepares 4000 meals per day.

Th work of a hospital chef is arduous; Watson arrives at the hospital any time between 4 a.m. and 6 a.m. and stays until late afternoon or until "everything is finished." But reminiscing over his job, it isn't the tough times he remembers best, even though he does ruefully recall that, during the war, a staff of four fed hospital patients working 12 and 14 hours a day to do it.

MANY MEMORIES

The things he remembers best are funny and poignant and sad.

For instance, he remembers a Stanford University football team that the staff fed before a game and after as the boys were being treated for minor scrapes and contusions. Two trays apiece were served to each stalwart as it was early apparent that one would come no place near filling up the aching voids.

And he remembers a measles epidemic which filled the hospital with Stanford students in the mid-thirties. Watson smiles tolerantly as he remembers playful pranks such as drilling holes in the walls for better communication and hauling up beer in baskets from friends on the ground. But his voice becomes severe when he remembers that when they were finished with meals, the students hurled the trays out the windows into the gardens beneath.

Watson has made appealing trays for many youngsters who came to visit parents who were ill over a long period of time; in earlier days, it was not unusual for children to stay at the hospital until a mother was able to return home after surgery or a long illness.

His kindness to these children was a morale booster to the whole family. At the family home at 189 Oak Court in Menlo Park, Watson treasures a hand-lettered, hand-illustrated poem titled "An Ode to Classic Sandwiches."

In the couplets, framed and under glass, a little girl says thank you to Arthur Watson for both good food and the thoughtfulness that has been so much a part of his tenure at PAS.

There have been times when Watson has shaken his head, but gone ahead to ruin a case of eggs trying to achieve a peeled two-minute egg. To please a fastidious physician of past years, he used to carefully pick the smallest peas out of pods to brighten another day.

There have been times when Watson hurried through supervising staff and cooking so that he could go upstairs to feed a patient who was helpless.

Without temperament he has been delighted to pitch in to help sick people. Realistically he admits that the ill are trying ;sympathetically, he thinks they have good reason to be.

CONTEMPLATING . . . . . . his 30 years as chef at Palo Alto-Stanford Hospital, Arthur Watson can look with satisfaction at the record. Head man for 27 years, he is now assisting A. King with whom he trades responsibility for feeding patients, staff and visitors. The task of ordering and preparing food in such quantity is one to stagger the householder's imagination, involving preparation of 80 gallons of soup for one meal or 300 turkey turnovers whipped up in a single day.

School Tax Loses... Cutbacks Set

Another Vote In '63

With more than 59 per cent of the Menlo Park School District's voters casting ballots, the district's permissive tax rate measure was decisively defeated Tuesday.

Complete, but unofficial returns showed:

For	2915
Against	3217

The rout was almost uniform throughout the district, with the exception that the tax measure received majority approval in most precincts where children rely on bus transportation.

Votes were taken at 27 precincts.

The measure, if passed, would have raised the district's permissive tax rate maximum from its present $1.99 per $100 assessed valuation to $2.49.

However, district administrators had promised that, even if the rate were adopted, a new salary schedule installed and all present programs retained, the district's rate would not go above $2.25. This figure does not include legal overriders; the actual rate would be about $2.37.

Hearing the results of the election Tuesday night, district trustees were quick to point out that the present tax rate maximum expires next year and a new tax rate measure will have to be submitted to the voters.

Unless it passes, the rate will revert to a state-set maximum of $.90 cents per $100 valuation. This rate was set many years ago.

'NO IDEAS'

School District Board Chairman Elwood Williams pointed out that the trustees have no ideas, at present, what rate will be proposed for next year.

"We'll be studying it all year long," he said.

The total number of persons who cast ballots—6132—was nearly 60 per cent of the district's total registration of 10,354.

Considering the size of the vote, Trustee Hiram Mears said he believed it was an accurate reflection of the opinion of the voters. He added that the light vote in the March 20 election—at which the same measure was submitted and defeated—left some doubt in his mind.

A citizens' committee spearheaded the campaign in behalf of passage of the tax measure, arguing that quality education cost money and that the district's tax rate was well below that of neighboring districts, and what the district could afford.

James D. Steiger:

Building Inspector Quits

James D. Steiger, chief building inspector for the city of Menlo Park, this week resigned after 14 years as a member of the city staff.

Steiger, 50, said he was resigning because an opportunity to enter private business has arisen and "I feel obligated to make the effort to improve myself and the future security of my family."

For a while, however, he said, he intends to take it easy and explore several possible fields of operation in which he might interest himself. He plans to remain a resident of Menlo Park.

/Meanwhile, City Manager John Johnson said that possible reorganization of the building inspection department might be considered.

Before Steiger's resignation, he said, the department had a chief—Steiger—and two assistants; it might be possible to reorganize it in some manner which would leave building inspectors free for field inspections, but provide other designations or other specialists for in-office phases of the job.

Steiger, a native of Modesto, had worked as a journeyman in electrical and plumbing work before joining an electrical firm as a superintendent in charge of work.

He later joined the county building department staff, for which he worked for a year and a half before joining the Menlo Park city staff in August, 1948. He replaced the late Max Mielke, who had been building inspector and superintendent of streets prior to his death.

His letter of resignation addressed to the city manager, reads:

"Please consider this my resignation as chief building inspector, effective June 16.

"During my 14 years with the city, I have had a number of fine opportunities to enter private business, which for one reason or another I did not choose to do. However, an opportunity has arisen again and I feel obligated to make the effort to improve myself and the future security of my family.

GREAT GROWTH

"Being a part of the city's staff during this period of great growth has been interesting and satisfying, and I have enjoyed my association with the various officials, commissions and city councils. I trust my work has made some contribution to Menlo Park's orderly growth and development.

The retiring building inspector resides at 1321 Crane St. with his wife, Maxine.

The couple has a grown son, Brad, who is on the staff of the Menlo Park Fire District, and two grandchildren.

Bus Transport Is Eliminated

Menlo Park School District trustees, meeting Tuesday night and learning immediately of the defeat of their permissive tax rate measure, reacted by:

1. Cutting bus transportation from the district's program;

2. Calling on the district teachers' association and teachers' association and teachers' compensation committee in evaluating what other programs can be cut.

The teachers' groups were to have met yesterday afternoon and yesterday evening to discuss the effects of the defeat. The trustees will meet again next Tuesday to continue paring their proposed budget for the 1962-63 fiscal year.

John Kerby, president of the teachers' association, said the executive board of that group would meet tomorrow afternoon.

Don Halvorson, representing the compensation committee, recalled that that group earlier had moved agreed to hold terms of a proposed salary increase in abeyance, if it would result in retention of "quality education" in the district.

However, trustees appeared to agree that the proposed salary schedule, which would raise minimum salaries in the district from $4650 to $5000 and top salaries to more than $10,000, should be adopted.

Dr. Glen Haydon, trustee who voted against the permissive tax rate measure's submission in the first place, said he didn't feel its defeat was a vote against the raise in teachers' salaries.

Trustee Dr. Hiram Mears said he felt the trustees should respect the opinions of the faculty, and let them tell what parts of the program they felt best could be trimmed.

'ENDORSEMENT'

Halvorson said the teachers' commitment to go along with present salary schedules was an endorsement of the board's program. But that was made by the compensation committee and not by the teachers association, he said.

The trustees also discussed specific budget cuts which have been proposed.

Elimination of bus transportation would save the district about $18,000 a year or three cents on the proposed tax rate, according to District Business Manager John Richert.

Several members of the audience seconded the proposal to drop this item, saying that, in campaigning for the tax measure, they'd run into many critics of this program.

Other major deletions which the administration had proposed include cutting the remedial reading program, which costs the district $14,000 a year; cutting mathematics research funds from $12,000 to $6000 a year; eliminating one Spanish teacher which it had been proposed to add to the faculty and cutting two classified persons.

Number of library books to be purchased, professional books, conference expense, the district's annual report and capital improvements amounting to an estimated cost of $24,539 also were considered for deletion.

District reserve funds could be cut from $46,000 to $40,000, resulting in a cut of another cent from the tax rate, Richert said.

The capital outlay cuts would include funds for such proposed items as reference books, a motion picture projector, shelving for classrooms, classroom cabinets, site improvements, playground equipment and lockers for eighth graders at the schools.

Another item which can be cut, Richert said, is participation in the city-school district after-school recreation program.

VICE PRINCIPALS

A proposal to put vice principals in teaching positions also was discussed; Superintendent Franklyn White maintaining that they were of sufficient help to classroom teachers to make it inadvisable to give them teaching jobs.

"There's no question that the teachers' pay increase should be given first consideration before we start trimming the budget," White observed.

The proposed trimmed budget actually first was presented to the trustees in April after the first defeat of their tax proposal.

Although allowing for a pay increase as such, it might affect trustees' plans for new "dimensions" whereby compensation of teachers could be increased.

These include giving additional pay for teaching beyond the term of the normal contract year, instructing for longer hours or heading in-service training sessions during the school year, and achievement of "career teacher" status which normally carries an annual bonus.

White said he'd have to hear opinions of trustees, teachers the members of the public and others before deciding the relative merits of items which can be cut.

"Then," he said, "we can swap back and forth."

Rita Jo Heckathorn:

Active M-A Coed Wins Burgess Honor

Rita Jo Heckathorn has been selected as this year's winner of the Charles P. Burgess Citizenship Award at Menlo-Atherton High School, it was announced by school administrators this week.

The award, which honors the memory of Menlo Park's longtime mayor and city councilman who died in 1957, will be for $100. It recognizes participation in school affairs as well as scholarship.

Miss Heckathorn, who was made a member of Golden Key, highest service organization at the school, at the end of her junior year, has served as a member of the school's board of welfare for four semesters and as a member of the justice council for four semesters also.

She is a member of the school band, has worked as a library assistant for two yeas, served as a member of the student body finance board for three years, and has been active in afterschool sports.

She is a member of the M-A girls' association, and participated in the student production of "Oklahoma" last year.

"The Burgess award is made annually to a graduating student at Menlo-Atherton High School," City Manager John R. Johnson explains, "because we feel it appropriate to honor somebody at the school which Burgess did so much to get built."

Besides serving from 1944 until his death as a member of the Menlo Park city council Burgess served for a term as a member of the Sequoia High School District board of trustees. It was during his term on the board that construction of Menlo-Atherton was started.

At the time of Burgess' death friends and city employees started the Burgess Citizenship Award fund, in memory of the former mayor's many contributions to the community.

Talks Set:

Protests Cause Deferment Of Belle Haven Rezone Bid

There'll be no Menlo Park planning commission action on that proposal to rezone some Belle Haven land from commercial to apartment uses until Monday, July 2.

The commission held up new consideration of the issue after representatives of the Belle Haven Improvement Assn. protested at Monday night's meeting.

The commission asked the BHIA to meet with Fred Gutt, one of the land owners proposing the rezoning, to see if some kind of agreement on land development can be reached.

The BHIA announced this week that such a meeting has been arranged.

Willie Bell, speaking for the BHIA Monday night, said that the Menlo Park Boys Club plans to build in the vicinity of Pierce, Alpine and Market where the rezoning is being sought.

Bell said he sympathized with Gutt because present owners are losing money on the land but added that he believed the Boys Club will eventually need to expand and use some of the vacant property. The developers should help make the community more desirable, he said.

Mrs. Robert Chatman said that more apartments would bring in a transient population, including some undesirables. School crowding would also be increased, she said.

Gutt has pointed out that commercial development of the land just hasn't taken place.

The rezoning proposals may be one of the items on the agenda when the BHIA meets Wednesday night at the Joseph Kelly Park recreation building. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m.

The residents of the area are urged to attend the session, which will spotlight election of new officers.

The nominating committee will submit a list of candidates including Bell and Cecil Smith as candidates for president. J. Howard and Sylvester Bass are the suggested vice-presidential candidates.

Ladera Rec, Stanford Agree on Land

Stanford University trustees have agreed to erase a controversial clause from a 30-year lease on 3½ acres of land being developed by the Ladera Receation District adjacent to Ladera School on La Mesa Drive.

And, as a result, the district has dropped a condemnation suit against the university.

These developments were announced this week by Lawrence Ebb, president of the Ladera district board.

Ebb also said that the two tennis courts and volleyball court, along with a picnic area, are near completion on the 3½-acre site. They'll be finished and fenced some time this month, he said. The work is costing about $15,000.

The lease modification eliminates a provision that stated the district would have to pay for both lands and improvements if and when they attempted to condemn Stanford land for recreation use.

Failure to agree on this matter led the recreation district to file suit against the university.

"Now we don't have to worry about that provision hanging over our heads insofar as future district development is concerned," Ebb said.

The 3½-acre site adjoins the already-developed recreation district swimming pool and bath houses adjacent to Ladera School.

SEARCH FOR BOY

Woodside firemen Sunday were called to Searsville Lake Park to help search for a 2½-year-old boy who'd wandered away from his family. He was found a few minutes later, wandering near the Searsville dam.

Two Are Injured As Car Crashes

Two San Francisco men were taken to Palo Alto-Stanford Hospital for treatment of injuries early Saturday, after their auto crashed at the Alpine Road-Santa Cruz Avenue intersection.

Hugh David Douglas Magee, 24, was identified by police as the driver of the car. He told officers he swerved to avoid a car stopped ahead of him

It's Too High:

Commission Solves Fence Problem—They Straddle It

Conceding to human frailty, the commissioners agreed that a fence which is too high on one side might well be too low on the other and that the way to deal with it was to try to make the whole thing pretty.

The fence is at an apartment at 122 East Creek Drive. It surrounds a swimming pool. Trouble is, the swimming pool is higher than the adjacent sidewalk so the side of the fence facing the sidewalk is seven and a half feet high.

That's illegal. Maximum fence height is six feet.

But wait. The side of the fence facing the swimming pool is only five and a half feet high. Minimum height for a fence around a pool is five feet.

So if the fence were to be cut to a height where it was legal from the outside, it'd be illegal from the inside.

William C. Johnson, 121 East Creek Drive, said he didn't like to have to look out of his window at an illegally high fence. Everybody else in town had to have legal fences, he observed.

Planning Commission Chairman Art Stadler allowed that he, Johnson, might not like to have to look at capering swimmers any better, though.

Representatives of the Claude T. Lindsay Co., developers of the apartment, swimming pool and fence agreed that there'd been a "human error" some place in the construction.

They agreed that maybe the planting of some bushes and other landscaping would be the way to deal with the thing.

M-A Teacher To Exchange

William W. Zeigler, counselor and language teacher at Menlo-Atherton High School, has been awarded a scholarship under the exchange teacher program of the department of state, it was announced this week.

Ziegler will exchange with Miss Jacqueline E. Corbiera of Lycee de Nimes in Sard, France; Miss Corbiere will teach French at Menlo-Atherton next year while Ziegler will teach American language and literature at the French city.

Trio Accused In Hitchhike Holdup Here

Two young men and a 15-year-old boy were arrested in Menlo Park early Monday after a Palo Alto man reported he'd been robbed at knifepoint by three hitchhikers.

Calvin N. Perry, the victim, identified the trio picked up by Menlo Park police at 1321 Willow Road as the robbers.

The men are Samuel Keller, 20, Mountain View, and John T. Shackles, 18, 1130 Carlton Ave., Menlo Park. The boy is also from Menlo Park.

Perry said he picked up the hitchhikers while he was driving north from San Jose. He said he agreed to go with them for a drink and wound up at the Willow Road address.

The three suspects than asked for a ride to another address, Perry said. When the car arrived at Del Norte Street and Terminal Avenue, the three grabbed him. One pulled a knife and the others took $66, he told police.

Perry reported the holdup at 5 a.m. The arrests were made shortly afterward.

Today:

PANCAKES

Today is "Pancake Day." From 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., you can get "all you can eat" in exchange for a $1 donation to the Menlo Park Kiwanis Club, which is sponsoring a sale of pancakes at the parking lot of Draeger's Market, 1020 University Drive.

Proceeds of the sale will be used by the Kiwanis to finance their youth activities; members of the club will man a portable kitchen where the eatables will be cooked all day long.

School Problem:

Attendance Area Talks Near

Menlo Park School District trustees Tuesday tentatively adopted a new attendance area map for the portion of the district west of El Camino Real.

Then, figuring they'd hear some strong reactions, they decided to hold formal adoption of their map until next Tuesday night. This will give parents a chance to evaluate the new plan.

According to the new attendance map, which affects youngsters of kindergarten through sixth grade age, attendance area boundaries will be:

Fremont School: San Francisquito Creek from El Camino to San Mateo Drive; El Camino Real from the creek to a point between Alejandra and Isabella Avenue; from the Britton-Isabella Avenue intersection southwesterly to Valparaiso Ave. east of Elena Avenue; south to Santa Cruz on a line excluding Corinne Lane frontages but including May Brown Avenue; south between Hermosa Way and Cotton street to Middle; along Middle Avenue to San Mateo Drive.

Hillview School: El Camino Real from the point between Alejandra and Isabella north to Atherton Ave.; along Atherton Avenue to the district boundary west of Fairview Avenue; along the district boundary to a point on Orange Avenue south of Valparaiso; along an irregular line to include the Delfino tract, cul-de-sacs fronting on Elder Street and Santa Cruz Avenue (both sides) to May Brown Avenue and thence along the common boundary with Fremont school attendance area across Atherton to the Brittan-Isabella intersection.

Remainder of the west half of the district would be in the Oak Knoll school attendance area.

The plan isn't ideal, District Superintendent Franklyn O. White conceded. But he and trustees agreed that it left fewer classes larger than called for in district policy than other schemes which could be devised.

Even so, he said, there will be one fourth grade class at Hillview with more than 30 pupils according to current projections, two fifth grade classes there with more than 30 pupils, and one fifth grade class at Fremont with more than 30 pupils.

According to district policy, maximum size of classes for the primary grades should be 25 pupils; fourth through eighth grade classes should have a maximum of 30 pupils.

Kenneth Barnes, principal at Hillview School who has been studying the transportation problem, pointed out that the figures can't be final.

There are several available building sites and some unoccupied buildings in the Hillview attendance area as designated, and some apartment building sites and vacant apartments in the Fremont attendance area which could materially affect the projections, he said.

Next Thursday:

253 Eighth Graders to Receive Graduation Certificates Here

Separate graduations for eighth grades at the three schools of the Menlo Park Elementary District which have them will be held next Thursday, June 14, at 7 p.m.

A total of 253 students are to be graduated from Oak Knoll, Hillview and Encinal schools, in programs which mainly will feature the students themselves. No outside speakers have been invited to any of the graduations; members of the school district board of trustees will distribute the diplomas.

At Encinal School, where 105 will be graduated, songs by the school chorus and by members of the class will be featured. Elwood Williams, chairman of the district board of trustees, will present the diplomas.

At Hillview School, Trustee Dr. Hiram Mears will present the diplomas. Melba Englert and John Flegel will be student speakers. The graduating class numbers 82. Special recognition will be given Mrs. Irene Molsbergen, who is retiring.

Trustee William Platt will distribute graduation certificates at Oak Knoll, School which is to graduate 66. Student speakers will be Harriet Stolaroff, Carolyn Polese and Mary Cook.

A party for the graduates, from 9 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. at the Hillview School multi-use room, will follow the rites.

Welding Torch Causes $7500 Garage Fire

An estimated $7500 damage was done Sunday evening by a fire which flashed through the garage of the home of Mrs. Lucille McDaniel at 1610 Purdue St., Menlo Park Fire District firemen reported.

Mrs. McDaniel's son, Leland, suffered first degree burns about the face as he attempted to carry tools from the garage.

The fire, reported at 8:29 p.m., apparently started when sparks from a welding torch which McDaniel was using contacted ground foam rubber, firemen said.

The flames spread throughout the garage and into the kitchen through an open door.

Two pieces of apparatus and 34 firemen were sent to the blaze.

A number of expensive tools were destroyed by the flames.

WIGPIECE TAKEN

A red-auburn woman's wigpiece last week was reported stolen from the Maurice Williams Beauty Salon, 1135 Chestnut St. Specialty items were taken from showcases. The burglary took place between midnight on May 28 and 7:30 a.m. Memorial day. The wig was valued at $155.

Scouts on Scene Aid the Firemen

A group of Boy Scouts Friday evening helped control a grass fire at the rear of St. Bede's Church site, pending the arrival of firemen.

The blaze, firemen said, apparently had been started by children playing with matches; the Scouts said they'd seen some leaving the scene of the fire, near Sand Hill Road and Monte Rosa Drive.

Firemen were called to the scene at 6:05 p. m.

They found that some Boy Scouts, under adult leadership, were already at work trying to control the fire. The firemen didn't get a unit number, however.

Woodside To Graduate 39 Next Week

Famous people and their contributions to America will be the Woodside Elementary School's theme in graduation ceremonies next Thursday, June 14. Thirty-nine students will receive diplomas from Dr. Frank Ruys, school board chairman, during the program beginning at 7 p.m.

James E. Tormey, San Mateo County superintendent of schools, will formally accept the graduates following their presentation by Woodside School Superintendent Lester Larsen.

Scholarship, citizenship and athletic awards will be presented top students during the program by P. E. Roberts, Jr., school board clerk.

A formal dance for the graduates will be held at 8:15 p.m. in the amphitheater behind the school, with music provided by the Park Squires Dance Band.

Today the graduates will go to nearby Blackberry Farm for their class picnic.

Flag's History To Be Topic At Graduation

A host of Portola Valley mothers are playing Betsy Ross this week in preparation for their eighth grade children's graduation.

The women have pitched in to sew replicas of 13, 15, and 34-star U.S. flags—all to be used in the commencement program for 70 students next Thursday, June 14, at the Portola Valley Elementary School.

It seems the mothers scoured much of the Bay Area unsuccessfully in an attempt to locate such vintage flags for the program, titled "The Development of the American Flag."

Tom Kornberg, class salutatorian, will deliver the welcoming address for the program beginning at 7:45 p.m. in the school's multi-use room.

The significance and historical background of the 13, 15, 34, and 50-star flags will be related by graduates Liz Morris, Lelie Leigh, Mona Felix, and Helene Royce, the class valedictorian.

Musical backdrop for the flag presentations will include: "We Hold These Truths" by the girls' chorus and class; "The Star Spangled Banner," solo by Martha Gaylord; "Rally Round the Flag" and "Bonnie Blue Flag", songs by the class; and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," sung by the class.

The graduates will close the program will the singing of Jan Sibelius' "Onward Ye People."

Diplomas will be presented by Dr. Milton H. Flocks, chairman of the school board, following the class presentation by Principal Harold A. Davenport.

Proposed Resubdivision Plan Stalled Before Planners

A proposal to resubdivide three lots at the corner of Oak Avenue and Olive Street into five lots was tabled by the planning commission Monday night.

It was tabled because some of the neighbors within the usual 250-foot "zone of interest" hadn't been notified.

But it was indicated Monday that the three property owners hoping to resubdivide their property probably will face opposition.

The owners hoping to resubdivide the rear portions of their lots to get two extra ones are Joe B. Morningstar, Charles Huggins and S. Dee Sanford. They conceded that they'd have to have a variance, since one of the lots would have to share an easement with an existing lot.

But residents of Middle Court said they felt the development was inappropriate, since "the character of the area has been established."

City Attorney John Jorgenson said that the city's legal position was protected, in that notification of the hearing on the resubdivision had been published.

But planners decided to hold action until the neighbors had a chance to consider it further.

In other actions, the planners:

1. Okayed plans for a new $25,000 office and awrehouse to face Jefferson Drive in Bohannon Industrial Park. The building, on a 46,000 square foot lot, will house Lacar Industries.

2. Set for July 2 hearings proposals to rezone two lots in Paraiso Park from single family classification. One is at 1321 Crane St.; the other at University Drive and Oak Grove Avenue.

Owner of the first parcel has asked for a multiple-family zoning; owner of the second wants to rezone for a professional office building.

Both lots are in an area which has been under study by the planning commission with an eye to rezoning of the entire area.

3. Okayed for use as an offic building a structure, formally a Dibble hospital ward building at 580 Willow Road.

4. Set for July 2 hearing a proposal to allow a caretaker's residence at a veterinary hospital at 1334-38 El Camino Real.

5. Indicated that offstreet parking would be required if the old postoffice at 560 Oak Grove Ave. in used as a laundry.

L. Lancestremere, applicant for a use permit for the building, was told he'd have to provide offstreet parking in accodance with requirements of an industrial zone, even if he had to lease some parking spaces.

Democrats Name Speaker For June Meet

John Bunzel, political science professor at Stanford University, will discuss the significance of the June 5 primary next Wednesday, June 13, at a meeting of the Portola Valley-Woodside Democratic Club.

Bunzel's 8:30 p.m. talk at the Portola Valley Community Center will be preceded by a social hour and box supper at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Stolz, 80 Golden Oak Drive, Alpine Hills.

A Redwood City woman was jailed on charges of drunken driving Sunday evening, after an accident at Alameda de las Pulgas and Atherton Avenue.

Morgan told police he was northbound on the Alameda and had negotiated the turn onto Atherton Avenue, when he saw a car ahead, backing out of a ditch. He stopped. The other car continued to back up, striking the front of his car.

Burglars Have Busy Weekend In Woodside

Two separate burglaries in Woodside over the weekend netted their perpetrators an estimated $1300 in goods and cash, sheriff's officers said this week.

Some $1300 worth of audio-visual equipment and typewirters was reported missing from Woodside High School when school opened Monday morning, and an hour later the Woodside Apothecary, 2969 Woodside Road, reported $400 worth of drugs and cash were taken.

According to sheriff's officers, entry to a storage room at the school was gained by forcing a casement window; entry to the drug store was achieved by forcing a rear door.

Missing from the high school were a motion picture projector, a tape recorder and two electric twpewriters, officers said.

The burglary at the drug drug store netted several types of narcotics listed as "dangerous" along with $140 in coin, two wrist watches and some hypodermic needles.

Druggist Harry Goulding, who reported the burglary Monday morning, said that a sack containing codiene compounds was found on the floor, indicating the burglar may have been frightened by patrols passing by.

Both burglaries could have occurred any time between Saturday and the Monday morning openings of the school and the store.

In Sharon Heights:

'High Rise' Apartment Plan Is a Step Nearer Approval

Possibility that Menlo Park will get its first six-story "high rise" apartment building moved a little closer this week.

City planning commissioners Monday night agreed to write a conditional development permit which would allow construction of such a building on a 15½-acre "island" in the middle of the Sharon Heights golf course.

The permit will be the object of action at the planners' July 2 meeting.

The commission decided to consider approval for development of the parcel under the "conditional development" law after City Attorney John Jorgenson gave the opinion that it would set no precedent for already-developed areas in Menlo Park.

And a set of photographic slides prepared by Planning Commissioner Don Horstkorta, which showed how the 'high rise" building would look on the property from the edge of the golf course, indicated that it wouldn't give a crowded appearance.

Actually, the 15½-acre parcel is to contain six four-story and two-story buildings in addition to the six-story one. Garages will be underneath the buildings.

Such a construction pattern will allow the developers to achieve a use density of 11½ dwelling units per acre, and a ground coverage of 16 per cent for the parcel, according to Emmett Cashin and Fred Marburg, representing the developers.

Commissioner Horstkorta said he liked the land coverage feature, which would be preferable to covering more of the land with lower buildings.

Commissioner Albert Hoover agreed that more open space would be destroyed if the commission insisted on lower buildings.

Commissioner William Crawford agreed also, but said he felt a precedent might be set. He said he thought the developers should provide a letter of intention of what they intend to do with another 35-acre "island" also slated for development in the golf course.

Cashin said it's hoped the developers can learn, after construction of the first "island," what to do with the second. The demands of the public for such units has not been established, he said.

Commissioner George Cleese observed that the city has plenty of control over what gets built under the terms of "section 10" — the conditional development section of the zoning ordinance which can be applied to undeveloped land.

Some excavation has already been done on the property, according to Cashin. This has been done so that golfers using the Sharon Heights course, which is to be open later this summer, won't be disturbed by dust.

Ron MacDonald, also representing the developers, said that according to present plans actual construction won't start until February or March of next year.

Frederic Hawkins Gets Commission From Air Force

A graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School, the lieutenant received special recognition at the Academy for his academic achievement by being named to the Dean's List.

Auto Damaged By Fire Here

An estimated $25 damage resulted, firemen said, from a blaze of undetermined origin which Friday afternoon damaged the upholstery of a car owned by Joseph Gainer and parked in the Stanford Research Institute parking lot.

The fire was discovered by a passerby, firemen said; the auto involved was a 1953 sedan.

Researchers Canvass In Menlo Park

Last week, as the campaign for and against passage of the Menlo Park School District permissive tax rate measure was drawing to a close, a team of Stanford University researchers was at work here.

They were making a study of "communications behaviour," according to Dr. Bradley Greenberg of the Institute of Communications Research at the University.

The study was to find out who people talked to and how they communicated in order to get the information they had.

First, Dr. Greenberg said, some 15 or 20 researchers made random calls on households in the district, and asked who they, in turn, talked to to get information about the schools. These people in turn were interviewed.

"These interviews tended to mushroom," Dr. Greenberg stated.

The questions about how one gets information were backed up by others — such as basic data on occupation, age, number of children of school age, education and other factors about the family.

Interviewees were also asked if they'd heard lectures, attended PTA meetings, or attended school board meetings also.

"It's a matter of finding out who talks to whom," Dr. Greenberg reported.

The study was made only in the Menlo Park School District at this time but it's intended that similar studies should be made, nationwide, over the next several years.

After data is analyzed, he said, it is hoped that some valid conclusions can be made, about "who talks to whom about what."

New Upholstery Shop Opens Here

Recently opened at 1916 El Camino Real is Treasure Aisle, new upholstering, refurnishing and remodeling shop. Partners in the enterprise are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Faughnan of 511 Menlo Oaks Drive and Mr. and Mrs. John McConnell of Redwood City.

Residents of the Peninsula since 1946, the Faughnans have resided in Menlo Park for the last four years. Before opening their new enterprise, they operated an upholstery shop in Burlingame.

The Faughnans have three sons: Donald, 12, who is to be graduated this year from Nativity School; Jeffrey, 3, and Stephen, 2.

McConnell, a licensed building contractor, will handle the remodeling end of the business. The McConnells are parents of four children.

The Faughnans intend to make a specialty of leather and naughahyde upholstering work.

As We See It:

The Meaning of Commencement In Process of Evolution

Some day, some learned individual will make a study of the rise and fall of the Commencement exercise.

Time was, the formal Commencement exercise was confined to those graduating from universities; then proud parents, desiring to extend the feeling of accomplishment to their children at a younger age, moved the appropriate time for such ceremonies down to graduation from high school, then, to the eighth grade. We've even attended nursery school graduation exercises at nursery schools, where the youngsters are fitted out with paper mortarboards and led through an "academic parade."

Nowadays, the numbers of people of all ages graduating from all these levels of educational accomplishment every year is almost overwhelmingly great; so much so, in fact, that the importance of individual accomplishment, in the eyes of the onlooker, is diluted by shear weight of numbers. This doesn't detract from the fact that all those people getting certificates and diplomas have accomplished something — that they've passed a milestone in their lives.

So today, there may be far less emphasis on high school and grammar school graduations than there was a couple of decades ago. Even college graduations may attract less attention than they did a few years back.

However, we feel that those graduating join us in the feeling that Commencements are once again regaining the status they should have: They're milestones in a lifelong process of learning — a beginning, not an end in themselves.

———o———

Let's Give Both Parties' Candidates a Break

The Republicans and the Democrats have made their decisions as to whom they'll back for the partisan state offices.

There's six months of campaigning ahead, and before it's over a lot of linen — dirty or not — will be washed in public.

There are those who will take every syllable they hear seriously. "Where there's smoke, there must be fire," they'll say.

There are those who won't believe a word they hear. "Political lies, promises and smoke-screening," they'll declare.

The danger is that one may apply one set of standards to his own party's candidates, and the other set of standards when judging the utterances of the opposition.

Of course, most of us were born either Republican or Democrats, and the number of people who are psychologically capable of changing their point of view from that of one party, to that of another, is limited. It ought to be tried, though.

We may have our doubts about the political acumen, statesmanship, intelligence or orientation of any one of the candidates. But so far, they've stayed out of jail, and they've demonstrated a willingness to serve the public in positions of responsibility. They all deserve a nod of approval for that, if nothing else.

———o———

Cutting School Budget One of Several Problems

Having seen their proposal to increase the permissive tax rate maximum defeated, members of the Menlo Park School District board of trustees are going to have to do some trimming.

We're sorry about this; as we've said before we've identified ourselves with the "spenders" and we don't consider such programs as foreign language and physical education instruction, or remedial reading ,to be "frills."

But we doubt if debate about what cuts are to be made in these programs will take nearly as long, or stir up as much dust, as a couple of other things with which the school district board is faced.

First there's bus transportation, now deleted from the district program. Partisans both for and against this program are vociferous and many.

Then, there's the matter of attendance line changes. Youngsters themselves may or may not care to be transferred from one school to another, but parents seem to feel that attendance at a given school should be guaranteed for their children from the time they enter until the time they graduate — though the average family hereabouts is a good deal less constant, often moving away.

The way things now stand, cutting the school district's budget to fit into the restrictions imposed by the results of Tuesday's election might well prove to be the easiest to solve of a series of problems with which the district board now is faced.

We look forward to covering lots of long, long meet-

From the "San Quentin News" we learn that Clare Van Horne, convicted of a murder in Menlo Park some years ago, is now active as a participant and promoter in intramural sports.

He had been a sports promoter in Canada, before coming to Menlo Park.

The pressure's off now, so people in the city manager's office and in the police department are no longer considering re-numbering Car 54.

When the television program "Car 54 Where Are You?" was new, the patrolman in that vehicle was subject to all sorts of tuneful greetings. But the novelty has since worn off, so he gets his dispatches in straight, non-television tones nowadays.

As a citadel of Republicanism, Atherton last week was once again shown to be preeminent in the south county, although it's not as conservative as Hillsborough, in the county-wide picture.

Figures published regarding voter registration for the June 5 primary show that Menlo Park has a fairly narrow Republican margin while Woodside is right up there, as a citadel of the GOP.

As a matter of fact, the Republican registration in Atherton might be growing. There are now 3204 GOPers in town, as compared to 797 Democrats. In previous years the ratio was only three-to-one.

Woodside, for the primary, had 1502 registered Republicans, compared to 531 Democrats.

Menlo Park showed itself to have a Republican registration of 7599, with 5213 Democrats signed up.

This puts all three cities at odds with the county as a whole, in which there are 111,309 Democrats, 93,767 Republicans.

When the Sharon Heights Golf and Country Club opens its doors this summer, it will, among other things, feature an unusual carpet especially woven in Philadelphia to withstand the beating of thousands of pairs of cleated shoes. So strong is the carpet, it will even cover the floor of the locker rooms themselves.

The carpet has been designed by Wynn Shaffer, National Society of Interior Designers, of the staff of Western Contract Furnishers, San Francisco, and consists of a deep wool pile, tightly woven trhough to the back. Part of the weave is made of a twist yarn to insure strength.

This is one of the first times that a locker room has ever been treated to so much luxury as a wall to wall carpet. Manufacturers of the unusual floor covering is the Downs Carpet Company.

The state, in case you've forgotten, is being surveyed with an eye to putting together an inventory of fallout shelter spaces.

In San Mateo county, they've identified a total of 15,567 such spaces—which isn't many, considering the total population of the county.

Last Thursday marked the grand opening of the second half of Flegel's furniture store at 870 Santa Cruz Ave., after months of building progress.

Highlight of the festivities was the drawing of prizes; officiating at the drawing were City Manager John Johnson, and Fielding McDearmon, manager of the Wells Fargo bank here.

Winners of prizes included Mrs. James B. Springer, Florence R. Fletcher, R. B. MacLean, J. Melle, Howard Evans, G. R. Wagenseller, Mrs. C. O. Dutton, William Torbick, Mrs. James Springer, Mrs. F. Budelli, W. H. Eachren and Anna Hoss.

Additional winners who were not present at the drawing but who may visit the store to claim them are R. J. Stonehouse, Mrs. V. M. Bella, Dave Hoffman, Mrs. A. W. Stainbeack, Leo Zermani, L. F. County Comment:

Preliminary Budget Now Ready

By FLOYD F. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

The county's preliminary budget for 1962-63 is now down in black and white and the figures will be used for public hearings between now and the time the final budget is adopted about the last week in August.

County Controller Ira Boynton has prepared the budget for printing and the total as it now stands is $38,211,345.25. This is just about three million dollars more than the spending program for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Boynton's figures show where the big increase will go. The salary budget in itself will jump from $12,304,883 to $14,597,851.

Actually the salary increases accounted for $526,819, the controller said. County Manager E. R. Stallings had "roughly estimated" the pay boosts at $450,000, but had not included approved salary increases for the elected officials which go into effect next January, the start of a new four-year term.

Controller Boynton estimated that $16,609,000 of the total budget would be raised from local taxes — or less than half the total. The balance comes, in the main part, from the federal and state grants in the health and welfare field and for road and highway needs.

Fees charged by the many offices also are expected to be up considerably in the next fiscal year. The actual fund balances will not be known until the end of the fiscal year and new assessment figures will be compiled and ready in July.

The totals on both the secured and unsecured rolls are expected to be up between eight and ten per cent, which is about average. This includes new construction and re-evaluations upward in some areas. Several industrial sections will be hard hit, and a few scattered residential areas that have escaped increases so far will be shocked.

Manager Stallings still predicts the budget can be financed with a DROP in the was in the southern part of tax rate of three cents! He the state recently attending a meeting of county administrative officers and appeared to be the envy of other counties.

He reports that San Diego, Sacramento, Santa Clara and almost all other counties are being forced to increase tax rates. The only exception in the Bay Area besides San Mateo County is Alameda County. San Francisco may be in for as much as a 75-cent boost. A comparison with San Francisco city and county is difficult, however, because the city's rate includes all school costs as well as local government.

What the county's total tax bill will be per $100 assessed valuation will depend greatly on how the school budgets shape up next month.

Fortunately, most of the districts are now levying the maximum rate possible but increased valuations will help some districts. However, we can still expect the seven-cent override tax this next year because the county has not yet reached the 25 per cent of value assessment figure, so says the State Board of Equalization. You can't convince some people or firms that their assessment figures are not above the 25 per cent mark. That seven-cent tax override can make a lot of difference in our total bill, but the school districts figure it is a life saver.

If the board of supervisors can carry out Manager Stallings' prediction of a three-cent tax cut, it will be the fourth year in a row that the rate has dropped in this county.

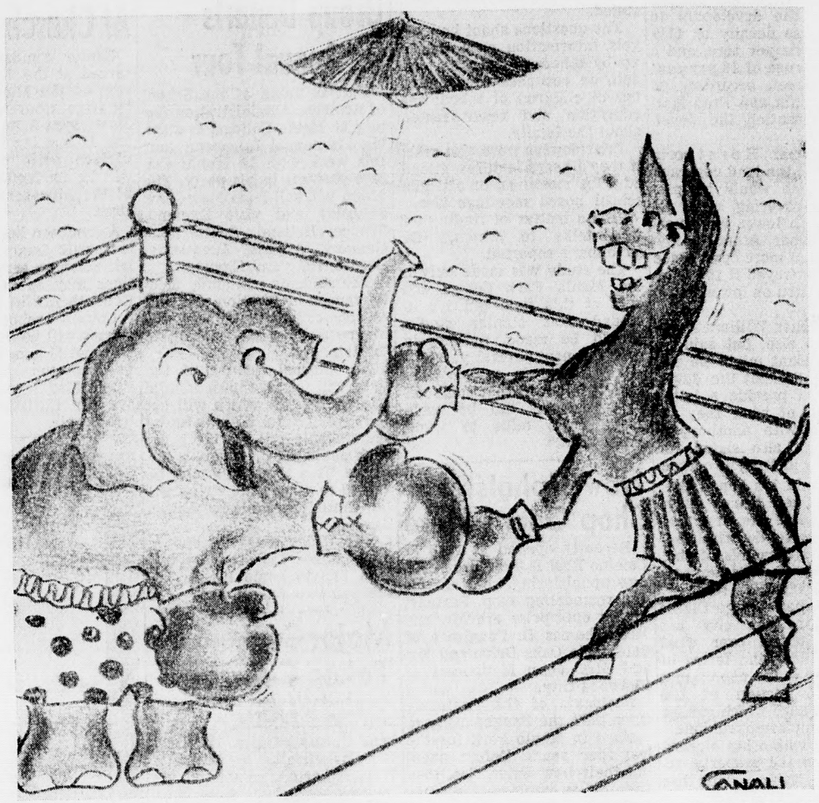

Few people will believe this when they see their bills going up year by year, forgetting that the schools take at least 60 per cent of the total which is entirely out of the jurisdiction of the supervisors.

There are many other special districts, not the least of which is the county harbor district (countywide). This agency has been taxing as much as five cents, almost entirely for improvements at the Half Moon Bay Breakwater. It is about time this special tax took a drop.

The south county disposal district cut its rate again, but before another year or two goes by we can expect the supervisors to adopt a county-wide disposal program.

No one has even guessed what the cost might be, but certainly south county residents should get credit for the financing they have put up to serve the area from Belmont to Menlo Park. The biggest scrap in the county plan will not be the cost, however, but the dump sites that may be selected.

Ready for the Fight

30 Years Ago:

Sequoia High Graduation 'Different'

The files of the Menlo Park Recorder reveal that, 30 years ago this week, the following items, here reproduced exactly as first published, were news in the young community.

June 3, 1932:

Several departures from custom, including the elimination of a commencement address, will mark the thirty-fifth annual commencement exercises of Sequoia Union High School to be held out of doors in front of the administration building Friday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The largest class in Sequoia history, numbering 204 students, will receive diplomas.

In place of the principal address by an outside speaker, three students will present brief talks on the topic, "Adjustment to Life." The speakers and their subjects are: Charles Inouye, "Personal Adjustment;" Bertha Botts, "National Adjustment" and Jack Murphy, "International Adjustment." The students were chosen for their forensic ability and high scholarship.

The diplomas will be presented by James D. Hedge, newly elected president of the board of trustees and a graduate of Sequoia with the class of 1898. Because of the large size of the class and the length of time required to distribute diplomas individually, a new arrangement has been made.

Municipal Report:

Longer Life Span May Affect Government

In a recent editorial column, there appears reference to a low-cost housing proposal for the elderly. Tied to it is a propositon to exempt such housing from certain categories of taxation.

In Arizona, where an entire "retirement community" is being built, there are moves afoot to exempt the residents thereof of certain categories of taxation.

And also recently, in "Readers Speak" column on this page, a resident called for full discussion of the idea that retired and elderly people are conspicuous among those those against rises in school taxes.

Probably many retired people are being blamed for a point of view held by only a few. But as the number of older people grows — and the life span is being lengthened constantly — even these few will begin to have a significant effect on the community.

The first place where critics of public spending can make themselves known, in the state of California, is in the schools. School districts are local agencies, governed by local boards. They hold open meetings and they have to return to the taxpayers with requests for money periodically, because their finance system is archaic.

The most easily identifiable group of people who get the least benefit from the schools are, of course, those with no children — which would make it appear that older people are the least likely to feel they are getting any benefit from school spending.

Whether this is true or not is, of course, problematical.

Senior citizens actually benefit from a variety of tax-supported programs and most probably realize it and vote accordingly.

For instance, though the Menlo Park Elementary School District doesnt' have a night school program the high school district does, and many of the most avid patrons of adult school classes are seniors.

In Menlo Park, a high degree of cooperation between the city and the Peninsula Volunteers has been achieved, with the result that Little House is built on public land in Nealon Park and the outside grounds are tended by city workers.

Also, the city set up a special zoning for retirement housing, which has made it possible for the PV's to construct some units facing Partridge Avenue.

Of course, City Manager John R. Johnson observes, the city looks pretty conservative alongside of a school district. If finances its capital outlay projects out of sales tax funds, for instance, and although its programs and operation have expanded with the population, it hasn't been faced with the huge building neds which characterized school expansion during the past decade.

What would happen if a less conservative city administration were to be installed? Suppose some really big spenders were to appear.

Probably all segments of the community would rise in opposition if the spending program influenced their property taxes overmuch. Allowing for inflation and the fact that the community's wage-earners would participate in it as well as the city's employees, it's likely, however, that a 10 per cent boost wouldn't be noticed by most.

But what of those retired people who are on relatively fixed incomes? Their pay won't go up, and it's likely they'd feel the pinch — even in the form of a small increase in the rent in their low-cost housing as the property tax boost is passed along.

What happens then?

Some will start saying that taxes are too high, and the pressure will be on. If inflation's the cause of the rise, a retention of taxation at the lower rate could only result in a cut in services or a resort to strategy by the public agencies.

Strategy can include such things as reassessments which are out of line with growing property values, the boosting of hidden taxes and license fees, boosting fines, and turning the police department into a revenue - getting agency through overstrict parking and traffic law enforcement.

There are lots of others.

But no matter how you slice it, you've got to pay for the services rendered by the public agencies.

SUHS Study Group to Get Student Population Maps

Maps showing the location of every student from the fifth through 10th grades in the Sequoia Union High School District — excepting those in the Belmont area — are being made, Dist. Supt. Rex Turner announced.

The maps will take three weeks to a month to complete. They're being readied for use by the district and by the special citizen's committee now studying the controversial high school attendance area changes planned by the school board.

The next meeting of the study committee is set for Monday, June 25.

Committee chairman Arthur Hayler has announced that the committee does not plan to issue any progress reports durdy.

Committee members have indicated, Turner said, that they don't want the local citizenry to be misled by "tentative thinking" on the part of the group.

Turner said that Asst. Supt. Scovil Mayo has been assigned as the district's "legman" for the committee. He will sek out and prepare the information which the committee asks for, Turner said.

The superintendent noted that four people are now working on the student population maps which are updated every three years or so.

The Belmont area is not being plotted because the students there are assured of going to Carlmont and no other

Good News:

Tax Cut Scheduled by County Mosquito Control District

Another San Mateo County special district plans to cut its tax rate.

It's the San Mateo County Mosquito Abatement District, which includes Menlo Park, East Palo Alto, Atherton, Woodside and most of the Portola Valley area.

A rate cut was recently announced by the South San Mateo Garbage and Refuse District. The present rate is 2.24 cents per $100 of assessed value. District directors say that the 1962-63 rate should be about 1.5 cents.

And the mosquito control district's current rate of 2.04 cents should drop to approximately 1.4 cents, the district trustees announced recently.

The budget is $98,735, which is about $2,000 under the previ-

ing in the tax cut are accumulation of reserve funds and increases in district assessed value.

The district has done a great deal of work in control of mosquitos along the tidelands area of Menlo Park and East Palo Alto.

The mosquito control district board, which meets in Burlingame, also has approved application for State Department of Public Health research funds totaling $10,000.

They want to continue the past program on biology and control methods for the pesky black gnats still common in this area.

Reveal Policy For Numbering City's Accounts

Those who've noticed that city vehicles are numbered and wondering what the numbers mean were this week reassured. The numbers have real meanings, not just for casual identification but for budgeting purposes.

City Manager John Johnson explains that, in city budgeting, the various accounts are numbered by hundreds. Thus, general government becomes "category 100" in the budget scheme of things, account 102, telephone; account 103, utilities, and so forth.

The city manager's department is department number 400. The auto assigned to the city manager therefore is city vehicle number 40.

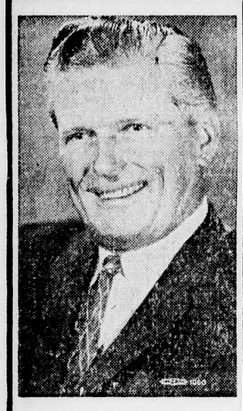

The police department is acounted for under the "500" series. Account 501 in the budget is for salaries. Autos and motocycles are numbered 50, 51, 52, and so forth.

The same numbers are used as radio call letters for the police cars and, in all departments, the maintenance and gasoline costs are charged to particular vehicles by numbers also.

Vehicles attached to the street department are numbered in the 60's, those of the parks department, 70's, recreation department, 8$'s; building department, 900.

The city attorney's accounts are handled under the 1200 series of numbers, the planning department's, 1300, library's, 1400.

Not all of these departments have vehicles assigned to them, of course, Johnson said, but all have that previously mentioned — "01" account, for wages.

Tonight:

'Where Do We Go from Here?' Is Portola Valley Meet Topic

Residents of Portola Valley will be able to hear a comprehensive up-to-the-minute report on their area tonight in an effort to answer the question: Where do we go from here?

The meeting open to all valley residents, is being held by the Portola Valley Assn., civic improvement group increasingly concerned of late with what it feels is a trend toward institutional development in the valley.

The session will begin at 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Portola Valley School.

Of salient interest will be a reassessment of the value of incorporation or of annexing to a neighboring incorporated area — specifically Woodside. Dr. Nevin K. Hiester, president of the association, said representatives of his group were to meet informally Monday night with Woodside town councilmen to discuss the pros and cons of such annexation.

Tonight's survey report made by an association study committee will, among other things, cover:

1. The association's past relations with San Mateo County planners and supervisors.

2. A reassessment of the association's incorporation reports of 1957 and 1960.

3. The results of incorporation for the nearby rural-type communities of Los Altos Hills, Monte Sereno, and Woodside.

Dr. Hiester stressed that tonight's meeting is strictly informational, and that, armed with a clearer picture, he hopes residents will be better able to decide on the best possible course for the valley.

The meeting also will be concerned with the development of foothill property stretching from Los Altos Hills to Woodside and with "rumors" of other projects.

Dr. Hiester said the association is especially interested in establishing better rapport with county planners and supervisors in mapping out the valley's future.

Two rest homes planned for the Alpine-Portola Road vicinity are the most recent targets of the civic group's opposition.

'Morris Plan' Promotes Menlo Park Man

Carl V. Wiese has been elected a vice president with administrative responsibilities in Northern California, according to Ralph N. Larson, president of the Morris Plan Company of California. The Palo Alto office at 418 Ramona St., will be his headquarters.

Wiese recently joined Morris Plan with nearly 25 years experience in the consumer lending field. For the past eight years he was vice president of Interstate Finance Corporation in Dubuque, Iowa, where he was instrumental in the expansion of loan operations in the surrounding area.

Prior to that he was associated with Household Finance Corporation as district supervisor of operations.

Wiese was born in Chicago, attended Northwestern University and served in the Navy for three years during World War II. The Wiese family, which includes his wife and 15 year-old daughter, lives at 980 Monte Rosa Drive, Menlo Park.

There will be special children's day exercises at the 9:30 a.m. hour, in the church auditorium.

Evening worship services will commence at 7 p.m. Dr. Plankenhorn will discuss "When Wedding Bells Ring."

Police Warn:

Burglars Menace Vacationer's Home

With summer just around the corner, Atherton and Menlo Park police chiefs Leroy Hubbard and George Potter this week issued their annual word of advice to residents on how to keep their homes safe from burglars and housebreakers when they go on vacation.

Their words of advice were started with an invitation: Those going on vacation should let the police know, so that checks on their property can be made at intervals during their absence.

Such "house checks" are made at frequent but irregular intervals, so potential burglars know there's a risk of being surprised. The officers look for open windows and doors, and other evidence of an entry when the owner is absent.

Naturally, Chiefs Hubbard and Potter add, the householder should contact the police as soon as he returns home. Otherwise, he's apt to find himself confronted by a patrolman who'll ask him if he's really the householder.

First and most basic step in preparing to leave a house vacant is to close anl lock all windows and doors, the chiefs add. Some prowlers never break a lock or window pane, but they're alert to any slip a householder may have made which will allow them to get into a home easily.

It's a good idea also to leave the key to your house with a neighbor, so checks on the interior of the house can be made if there's any suspicion that something is wrong.

Also, according to the officers, someone — either the police or the neighbor — should know how to reach you in case of an emergency.

The outside appearance of a home is important, too. Newspapers and mail should be collected by a neighbor, to keep them from piling up and giving a clue to the observant would-be burglar that a home is vacant.

If the absence is to be a long one, it's a good idea to make arrangements to have the yard tended. Long, dry grass in the lawn or untended flowers are pretty much an indication that no one has been home for some time.

A light should be left on in a vacant house, too. Ideally, it should be in an interior hall or back bedroom, so a night-time prowler unacquainted with the floor plan of the house can see the rays of light, but can't tell whether there's somebody working by that light or not.

Following all of these steps does much to cut down the possibility of a burglary and should eliminate a great deal of the apprehension a householder otherwise might feel while on vacation, the chiefs observe. This makes for a happier stay away.

So saying, the chiefs added their own wishes for happy vacations.

Finds Fascinating Hobby In Growing Hybrid Iris

COURTYARD CHERUB . . . . . at the Florence Moore estate in Atherton provides a centerpiece for floral displays at the Decorator's Show being presented through June 15 by the Palo Alto Auxiliary to the Children's Home Society. Mrs. John O'Brien and Mrs. Frederick Dilg (at right) are in charge of decorator displays, gallery exhibits and the flower arrangements.

If you combine a lively curiosity, an interest in gardening —and patience, you are a potential hybridizer, according to Mrs. J. D. O'Brien of Portola Valley.

A participating exhibitor in the recent garden show sponsored by the Garden Club of Palo Alto at the Price estate in Atherton and now looking ahead to the Decorators' Show to be presented by the Palo Alto Auxiliary of Children's Home Society, Mrs. O'Brien chooses to work with iris because it takes only two years for a new variety to develop, the seeds are big and easy for an amateur to handle and because the plants respond with a minimum amount of care and culture.

It's a safe assumption that Mrs. O'Brien will contribute some of the green, pink and blue iris that she has developed when the show is held at the former Florence Moore estate in Atherton through June 15. Present owner of the estate is Arthur G. Manzo of Atherton.

BIRTH OF A HOBBY

Mrs. O'Brien started to hybridize iris in 1947 and advises the neophyte that logical, critical weeding out of plants is necessary so the hobby can be contained in a home garden. In 1957, Mrs. O'Brien made about 200 crosses and was borrowing patches of ground from San Francisco to San Jose to contain the results. This involved so much running around to keep track of progress for the records she kept that she now restrains herself to not more than 50 crosses a year — still quite a few seedlings to plant and care for.

After working in all colors, Mrs. O'Brien became interested in working for a green iris because a good one has not yet been developed.

WILL POWER

Planting space is the factor that turns most hybridizers into specialists, according to the Portola Valley expert, who advises that "if you are a timid soul who can't bear to dig up a volunteer plant or thin out old clumps of flowers, don't even start hybridizing."

A few of the intriguing facts about iris are that they are the only flowers, beside pansies that come in colors all the way around the color wheel. Too, as long as you have a piece of root or rhizome, the iris is more permanent than an oak tree. The iris never reverts in color (if it appears to have done so, the hybridizer has simply thinned the wrong seedlings). If two hybridizers were to cross the same two varieties of iris for 20 years, neither would have a duplicate. An enthusiastic Mrs. O'Brien is intrigued by the fact that the minute a hybrid is developed, the originator has a flower that will never be duplicated anywhere.

Chief Volpiano Warns:

Fire Peril to County's Forests

South San Mateo County's forest backdrop — what does it mean to you?

This is the big question as summer vacationers once again begin flocking to the Skyline to enjoy one of the last comparatively virgin wooded areas in the San Francisco Bay region.

If you don't value it too much, it's quite possible your stray cigaret ash or open campfire could end it all in a wall of flame, thus depriving generations to come of a beautiful setting.

No one recognizes this more than the Woodside Fire Protection District's Chief John Volpiano, who must keep an eagle's eye on the now tinder dry hillsides above Woodside and Portola Valley.

"Because of this year's lack of late spring rain, the critical period for fires is already upon us," Chief Volpiano warned. To help combat this, he said more caution signs are going up in critical fire areas throughout the district.

Persons smoking on horseback still pose a major problem to fire protection work, according to the fire chief. He stressed that such practices could mean the loss of many of the trails crossing private property.

Campers, he said, should note that open fires are only permitted in designated camping areas, such as Searsville Lake or Huddart parks. Roadside campfires are illegal throughout the district.

Motorcyclists and scooter riders are often guilty of trespassing on private property, which they endanger with their exhausts and spilled gasoline. He urged them to keep to the recognized roads and not take off through the fields and trees ,with the friction of their tires spelling possible trouble.

And although horses are more sophisticated than in the days of the first combustion engines, Volpiano said they'll still shie at the sputtering of motorcycles and scooters. He stressed that such vehicles should keep away from horse trail areas, thus avoiding possible injury to horsemen.

Motorists too should observe the rules by stamping out cigarets in car ashtrays. The majority of roadside fires have been caused by smoldering butts flicked from windows, Volpiano commented .

As for parents, he advised that they be fully informed of their children's whereabouts on overnight camping trips.

Do their offspring have approval to use the area as a camping site? And is there adequate supervision?

"Our biggest offenders are juveniles who come up to the hills at night for wienie roasts," Volpiano explained.

Near at Hand: Beaches, Parks Call County Residents

It's natural that the out-of-doors should beckon during the summer, and for those who can't be away from home for more than a day, the fact that they can't take extended trips may seem like an intolerable restriction.

But long trips aren't really necessary to get a person or family out into the woods or to the beach for a few short hours.

In San Mateo county alone, there are scores of public facilities available throughout the season; all you need to get to them is a road map, such as is available at most service stations.

Public beaches, for instance, extend almost the length of the coast in San Mateo county, starting at Thornton Beach in the extreme north and terminating with the as-yet-undeveloped Ano Nuevo Point Park.

Many of these beaches are crowded, it is true, but this is largely a matter of accessibility. For those who want to drive a little farther or descend a little steeper cliff, there are beaches which are seldom used.

For those with a desire to spend a day in the woods, the most available park hereabouts is Huddart Park on King's Mountain Road in Woodside. Barbecue facilities are available.

Across the ridge, the county operates both Portola State Park and San Mateo County Memorial Park; these too have facilities for the picnicker.

Butano Redwoods State Park has been purchased for public use, but as yet is not developed.

Along the bay side there's Coyote Point in San Mateo, with beach and picnic facilities also.

Car Deserves Care Before That Journey

When you jump into the car and hit the road this summer for far-off places, can you be completely sure the car is ready to go? Spot checks of service stations have revealed that some 60 per cent or so of autos needing corrective work under the hood alone don't get it. And well over 60 per cent of all cars on the road need work of some sort.

The warm weather most of us will be encountering this summer is a tough row for the average family car to hoe. Any help it gets will be returned in longer and more reliable service. Lubrication and oil change at the neighborhood gas station before your vacation is a good start, but it isn't the whole answer.

First and most noticeable among hot-weather troubles are those in the cooling system. Modern cooling systems weren't intended to cause heaps of anguish on a lonely roadside, but they will if neglected and thus are given the opportunity.

First off, have it checked for leaks, preferably under a pressure tester. This will reveal any leaks in the hoses or gaskets, or point up any loss of pressure tension in the radiator cap.

Electrical systems, a major cause of breakdowns, should get the undivided attention of a serviceman before you leave, too. Breaker points don't look like much to the inexperienced eye, but fused together they render the car useless.

The same could be said about coils, ignition locks, spark plugs and all the connecting wiring. Have the coil and plugs tested and replaced if necessary. The plugs especially will pay their way in better gas mileage by burning the gasoline more cleanly and giving you more power per engine revolution.

Engine timing is a little item not followed too closely by many drivers, yet only about a third of the cars on the road have their timing adjusted to manufacturers' recommendations. Timing that is advanced or retarded too far over the satisfactory limits wastes fuel, and retarded timing cuts down car performance as well.

Battery and generator checks almost explain themselves, since they're the prime source of your car's electrical power.

It's also not a bad idea to have the gas line blown out with a high-pressure air hose. Sediment and dirt does get into the fuel system and what doesn't build little dams in the fuel lines often clogs fuel pump diaphragms and carburetor jets.

Now that you've worked your way to the carburetor, don't forget that it could use some care too. Jets should be clean and all moving parts in both the barrels and automatic choke should move freely. Poor gas mileage most often is traced to the carburetor and faulty mixture adjustment, the servicing.

Fan belts must be looked after. Every electrical and power-operated device on the car depends on the action of the belt or belts for its power supply. If belts are split or frayed along the pulley edges or are squealing, they should be replaced.

Need we say much about tires? These are the most noticeable non-durable items on the car. Don't take them out on vacation if they're bald or the tread is cupped or worn unevenly. Good tires and balanced wheels are one of your best safety precautions.

Last but not least, don't hesitate to stop for gas regularly. The American Automo-

Beauty Plus Geology:

Skyline Drive Delights 'Rock Hound'

To the unitiated, a trip along Skyline Boulevard from Crystal Springs Lakes to Skylonda may be just a pretty road, with a spectacular view of both sides of the Peninsula as one crosses and re-crosses the ridge.

But to the "rock hound" and the practical geologist, it is more than that; every road cut and exposed surface rock has a meaning and is a source of interest.

Most of these items are detailed in a 390-page publication of the California State Divison of Mines. The volume covers the entire Bay Area with some thoroughness, and also includes a glossary and explanation of terminology which makes it a valuable traveling companion.

It's titled "Geologic Guidebook of the San Francisco Bay Counties—History, Landscape, Geology, Fossils, Minerals, Industry and Routes to Travel." It's otherwise known as Bulletin 154. Copies are available at the Ferry Building, San Francisco.

Here's how it describes the stretch of road in question:

"West of upper Crystal Springs Lake dam the road crosses a belt of gravel and aluvium belonging to the Plio-Pleistocene Santa Clara formation. It lies uncomformably on the Franciscan formation and occupies part of an old depositional basin which has been largely obliterated by erosion and faulting along the San Andreas rift. Roadside exposures of the Santa Clara gravels are poor.

(The San Andreas rift, or fault, lies along the center line of the lakes. Movement of rocks along this fault were responsible for the San Francisco earthquake of 1906.—ed.)

"Seven-tenths of a mile west of Upper Crystal Springs Lake dam is the entrance to Skyline quarry where crushed rock is produced. The quarry faces are driven in a thoroughly brecciated limestone lens of the Calera member of the Franciscan formation.

"The limestone fragments showing in the face of the south quarry are all smaller than one's fist, indicating how powerful the crushing forces were . . .

"Six-tenths of a mile south of Skyline quarry a series of broad road cuts exposes more faulted and jumbled Franciscan rocks. Large sandstone and shale blocks are distributed haphazardly among areas of serpentine, basalt, limestone and gabbro.

"The latter is white and green altered granitic rock which originally was intruded into Franciscan sediments along with peridotite now serpentinized. Original relationships between the several rock types in the road cuts is confused by fault movements also related to the San Andreas rift.

"As the road continues to climb the ridge away from the fault zone, the strata is less disturbed and parts of fold structures are discernible.

"At the top of Cahil ridge, Highway 5 turns abruptly southeast and diverges from Pilarcitos Creek road which connects with Half Moon Bay. Road cuts near the road junction are in Franciscan shale and sandstone but a dirt road turns west to Hilltop quarry, where a small limestone lens has been quarried for crushed rock.

"Three and five-tenths miles from the Half Moon Bay road junction, massive gray sandstone reefs stand out from the soil cover a few hundred yards west of the road . ..

"Four and three-tenths miles from the Half Moon Bay road junction the trace of a small thrust fault may be seen in road cuts east of the highway. Massive sandstone has been thrust over shale at a low angle, the apparent line of thrusting being east-west with overthust force from the south. The fault is probably not a major structural feature but is nicely exposed and gives some idea of the kind of forces which have affected the area.

"Just south of the thrust fault locality a heavily wooded region begins which is typical of Skyline drive and the San Francisco Peninsula in general . . .

"As the more heavily wooded parts of the hills tend to have a deeper soil cover, and as road cuts north of the Woodside Road junction are not very extensive, some rock formations are not as conspicuous as they are farther south.

"Four-tenths of a mile southwest of the Kings Mountain-Tunitas Creek junction lofty road cuts expose thin-bedded siliceous shales which contain fossil miscroscopic plant remains called diatoms.

"The tiny porous remains lend a punky character to the shale . . . Toward the eastern end of this large series of road cuts, a jumbled face of rocks marks part of the major Pilarcitos fault . . . It is of a thrust type farther north, but at this point probably is vertical with downthrow to the west.

"South of this locality the highway winds along almost parallel to the fault as far as Skegg's Point. The road cuts are mainly in steeply dipping Monterey diatomaceous cherty shale, but the road crosses into massive white sandstone at one point.."

The account describes the view possible from Skegg's Point (2315 feet in elevation) and continues:

"Less than a hundred yards southwest of Skegg's Point a well - exposed, sharp anticline or arched fold of Monterey shale may be seen in road cuts west of the highway. A small tongue of white sandstone has been brought up in the axis of the fold.

"Half a mile south of Skegg's Point, a single giant coast redwood dwarfs the other trees. It is well over 17 feet in diameter above the flared base and has been estimated to be 1500 years old.

"For four miles the road winds through white sandstones and brown diatomaceous and organic shales of Miocene age . . .

"Three and eight-tenths of a mile south of Skegg's Point is the intersection of the Corte Madera - LaHonda road with Highway 5 . . ."

CAMERA CARE KEY TO PHOTOS

Taking good care of the camera itself is the first prerequisite to taking any sort of photos.

A lint brush and some lens tissue are the main weapons for keeping a camera clean. If the camera isn't carried in a case, the lens should be wiped off every day with lens tissue.

Between film changes, when the camera back is open, check the inside of the body for dust. Here's where the brush will help.

A camera shutter is a finely-tuned spring-operated piece of machinery designed to provide exposure for the duration stated on the selector ring. Therefore, when not actually taking pictures, DON'T LEAVE THE SHUTTER COCKED. The shutter springs are under tension and after long periods will lose their strength,

Before You Leave:

Pre-Trip Care Saves Garden

One of the many things vacationers worry about when they are away from home is "How are things in the garden," or "I wonder what the lawn looks like now." With a garden representing a year's care and attention since last vacation, it's small wonder it should cause some concern, particularly when the care and attention suddenly stops.

In order to give himself a fighting chance of finding things under control when he gets back, there are some things a gardener should do before he leaves.

One is to apply a one-inch deep layer of peat moss on the flower beds and around the shrubs. Then soak the soil thoroughly. The peat moss will hold the moisture and keep nourishment going to the plants in the absence of regular watering.

Check plants for yellow leaves and rundown, listless condition and take corrective measures. They can only get worse and it'll be that much harder to correct their ailments after a layoff.

If crabgrass is a problem, use some crabgrass killer on it before you go. It too will still be there when you come back if you leave it when you go. To make sure, the killer should be applied several times at regular intervals.

If the neighbors' boy is keeping things watered while you're gone, be sure he waters in the evening, when the heat of the day is subsiding. This will avoid sunscald on the plants.

Begonias and fuchsias especially should be kept cool during the hot days by dampening the soil and sidewalks around them. This raises the humidity and keeps the soil cooler. A fine spray directly on the plants is the best arrangement.

PESTS

This also is the most likely time of year for the insect division of the animal kingdom to invade plants. General garden spraying with an insecticide that gives wide kill should hold down most of the pests and is most effective in your absence if done just before you leave.

The good gardener also keeps his garden tidy, picking up dead leaves, twigs and flowers so that pests have no place to congregate. A strong spray of water over shrubs and flowers also will help to wash away pests.

ON HIS TOES . . . . . literally, Morey's Materials second sacker Danny Murphy reached out just in time to take a throw that forced Derry's Feed and Fuel's Ken Zukin (2) at the keystone corner Monday. Zukin was forced by Mark Morningstar's infield grounder. Morey's went on to win the AL game 9-5.

Jensen Looks Back on Ruth Pack

No doubt about it, the Jensen Importers have become the team to beat in the Menlo Park Babe Ruth League. The loop's only unbeaten nine proved that Tuesday by nipping previously unwhipped Rex Floor Coverings 6-5 at Burgess Park.

But with the first round still less than half over, there's still time. The Menlo Mufflers, two games behind, take a flyer at the Importers in tonight's top game at the Veterans Administration Hospital field. Rex, in the meantime, has Peninsula Lithograph, also only two games back, to fight off at Burgess Park. Lindsay Construction, the other second-place club, could move up a little by getting by last-place Fox & Carskadon at Kelly Park.

In other games today, Lowe Realty meets Johnson & Mape Construction at Flood Park. Red Cottage stands R-C Electric at Woodside High and Calso takes on Bohannon at Ravenswood High. All games start at 5:45.

Bert Warden's homerun in the fourth inning spelled the difference for Jensen Tuesday, giving Ernie Berg the victory over Tad d'Arc. Bob Law doubled in the second and Chico Roberts tripled in the fourth, both two-run innings for Rex that gave the Floormen the lead each time. Jensen got four in the second before Warden's blast.

The Mufflers scored in the last of the seventh to beat Red Cottage 4-3 at Flood when Joe DeScala walked and scored on an overthrow of Rod Pommes' bunt. Pommes was relieved on the mound by Andy Cattaneo in the seventh. Cattaneo went two-thirds of an inning and got the victory. John Hofferd lost, striking out 11 and going the route.

Lindsay turned it on Pen-Litho at Kelly with a 12-4 smashing. Danny Gibson won it, striking out eight and helping himself with a triple. Art Edge led the 12-hit Lindsay parade with three average-raisers off loser Pete Nadell and reliever Chad Lincoln. Jerry Brown's double was the big smash of a five-run Lindsay fourth.

A dropped third strike and ensuing overthrow at first let the winning run in in the seventh that gave Johnson & Mape a 10-9 win over Fox & Carskadon at Ravenswood. Mark Skrabo won, Bob Wimmer lost. Ron Starr got four hits for J&M and Larry Armstrong two. Ken Baker and Jerome Redick each got three for the losers and Willie McGee a triple.

Byron Gon outlasted Randy Demeter, each allowing six hits, in Bohannon's 8-3 decision over Lowe at the VA field. Mel Easley had two Bohannon hits including a triple and four RBI to pace the Builders. Jim Hicks and Dick Brumm swatted a pair of singles apiece for Lowe.

Judd Jessup netted a surprising seven RBI in R-C Electric's 13-5 lacing of Calso at Woodside. Calso's fourth straight setback. Jessup got two hits, a triple and double. Don Bunce and Bob Canete also doubled for the Electricians. Bunce, Bob Shreve and Calso's Jim Moreing each got two singles. Bob Wilhellm was the winner and Bob Matutat the loser.

Results of last Thursday and Saturday's Babe Ruth games are on page 13.

LATE . . . . . getting to third base, Lowe Realty's Peter Moy was out trying to go too far on Dick Brumm's single and Jensen Importers third baseman John Jensen got him on the relay throw from the outfield. Jensen won the Babe Ruth League contest at Burgess Park Saturday 6-3.

Shreve's Bumps AL Contenders

IN TROUBLE . . . . . in the third inning Monday, Derry's Feed and Fuel pitcher Neil Barbour got a pep talk and instructions from manager Bud Hjelm. Barbour eventually took the loss to Morey's Materials, which won the AL game 9-5.
—Recorder photo

It's beginning to look as if anyone that knocks off Shreve's Sport Shop is going to be pulling one of the big upsets of the current Menlo Park American Little League race. The Sport Shoppers are 7-0 now, three games ahead of runners-up University Barbers and Morey's Materials and are threatening to make strictly a one-team New York Yankee-type race of it.

Three of their wins, the last two in a row, have seen the Sport Shoppers push over the winning runs in their last at-bats, just the way champions do.

Next shot at the leaders belongs to Morey's on Saturday in the feature AL game of the week. That'll be at 4 p.m. at Burgess Little League diamond and the last game of the day. The other AL game Saturday has Seybold and Beh realties meeting at 1. Today it's University and Seybold at 6:45 and tomorrow Beh and the Van de Sande Clothiers at 5:15.

Typical of the way they're winning them, Shreve's pushed over all three of its runs in the last of the fifth Tuesday to turn back University 3-0 and stick righthander Tom Strong with his first loss. Steve Gutting led off with a single, Gary Wright walked, Mike Jaurequi hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Gutting on an error, Jon Kline singled in Wright and Chris Siegfried singled home Jaurequi.

The Barbers got six bingles off winner Dick Metzger, but could do nothing with them. Strong got two and Nick Houtman got a double. Metzger struck out eight and Strong nine. Each walked one and gave up six hits.

MONDAY

Morey's Materials pounded out six runs in the third inning and three more in the fifth to down Derry's 9-5, with righthander Bob Zaro going all the way on a six-hitter. He struck out seven and walked five.

Greg Luque brought in three with a double in the third and an infield error on an attempted pickoff brought in two more. Chris Connaway doubled in two in the fifth. Loser Neil Barbour was chased during the big third, bringing on Roger Kemmerle.

Derry's got four in the third on three singles, a walk and sacrifice flies by Brent Connor and Ken Zukin. Larry Manning doubled in another in the fifth.

SATURDAY

Seybold Realty gained its first victory of the season, upending Van de Sande 6-4 in a pair of runs in the last of the sixth. Two walks and singles by Doug Nunn and Robbie Jorgenson brought in the deciding tallies.

Doubles by Nunn, Tom Weiershauser and Tom Jarvis got Seybold one run in the first. Five walks off Barry Howe got two more in the second. Van de Sande's Joe McMonigle put the Clothiers even 4-4 in the sixth with an RBI double, but that only set the stage for the Seybold comeback. Ricky Fessenden was the winner, Skeeter Chafey the loser.

Bruce Copenhagen tamed University Barbers with a neat two-hitter in Beh Realty's 2-0 triumph in the other Saturday game, striking out ten and walking six. Paul Lorenzen started but was slugged for six Beh runs in the second. Copenhagen won his own game with a bases-loaded homer to top off the rally. Mike Whitaker and Mike Hatfield each got two hits for Beh.

FRIDAY

Shreve's Sport Shop waited till the last of the final fifth to score the winning run in their 5-4 conquest of Derry's. Jim Spell doubled and came home on Eric Courter's fielder's choice. Courter hit two doubles earlier, one setting up a run, the other scoring one. Chris Ziegfried got three hits for the Sport Shoppers, bringing in two counters.

Siegfried also was the winning pitcher, following Mike Jauregui and Spell to the mound. Barbour started for the Fuellers, with Steve Walker relieving in the fourth and getting the loss.

THURSDAY

Lorenzen, Tom Strong and Nick Houtman got together to hold Morey's to two hits as the University Barbers racked up a 3-0 victory, all three runs coming in the fourth. Tim Crocker doubled in two. Dick Budelli followed with a two-bagger and Laird Walton singled him home. Dave Hoffman lost it, with Tim Shannon in relief. Strong got the victory.

WEDNESDAY

Derry's staged a four-run sixth to win its first of the year, 5-3 over Beh. Manning belted a two-run homer, Connor got an RBI double and an error provided the other run. Walker netted Derry's its first run in the first with a double.

Copenhagen got a pair of doubles for the losers, with Gabe Whelan getting two singles. Barbour was the winner, relieving Walker. Bob Bohle lost, going all the way. Beh outhit Derry's 7-4.

39th YEAR—No. 23 THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1962

By JOHN CURRY Sports Editor

Menlo Can Field PAL Team, If—

Wanted—one Menlo Park team to defend its 1961 Police Athletic League baseball championship. This isn't much of a way to get a championship defense started, but the Menlo Park Merchants, as they were known last year, are having problems, and with the PAL season starting this weekend they aren't getting any smaller.

League director Ed Mitchell of San Carlos outlined the two problems the Menlo team faces if it's to compete in the eight-team PAL this year (eight with Menlo): 1. Money. 2. Coaching.

The money was taken care of partially at Monday night's league meeting when it was decided to advance the funds to operate the club and let it find some way to pay it back—that means keep up the search for a sponsor.

But that still leaves a coach. Larry Costa and Bill Hughes skippered the club last year, but neither can spare the time this summer and no replacement has turned up. Mitchell is available at LY 1-5206 for any prospective coach who would be interested in taking over a team of 16-17 year-old experienced high school ballplayers.

The PAL is catching on. Last year there were six teams. This year, if Menlo comes in, there'll be eight. They had nine lined up until Monday, when the Millbrae team dropped out because of a jurisdictional conflict with another league up there.

There is interest in the team here and there would be no shortage of players. Mitchell wants very much for Menlo Park to be represented in the league and is anxious to hear from somebody who wants to take a crack at a repeat championship. You have his number.

★ ★ ★ ★

Down in the Menlo Park Little League they're catching on pretty fast. Monday night, Morey's Materials nine-year-old second baseman Danny Murphy took a called third strike that he thought was closer to the awning-sized bill of his cap that his shoulders. Coming back to the bench, he told manager Dave Havard, with gestures around his cap bill "He must think I'm a 12-year-old."

Lions Get Jump on NL; Meet Rotary Saturday

A sort of a "crucial" is on tap for the two winless Menlo Park National Little League clubs tonight, with All-American Markets and Ironclad Golf Covers meeting at 5:15 at Burgess Little League diamond to decide who stays that way.

Each has lost four in a row, just the opposite of the front-running Lions, who are getting a good jump on defending their 1961 championship by sporting a 4-0 record. They'll meet up-and-coming Rotary in the top NL game of the week, at 11 a.m. Saturday. Second-place Menlo Florists and fifth-place Lowe Realty tangle tomorrow at 6:45 p.m., with Lowe returning to battle Kiwanis in the other Saturday game, starting at 2:45.

Latest of the lumps taken by the tailenders was that dished out by Kiwanis to the Golfers Tuesday, 8-1. The Kiwanians jumped on loser Mike Dunn for six hits and seven runs in the first inning. John Walton drove in two with a double, Greg Baker scored one with a single and three came in on errors. Kiwanis added another in the second when Paul Dunbar singled and scored on another bobble.

Dunbar, however, did all right on the mound too, choking off Ironclad with just one hit, a single by Mike Ironside, striking out 14 and passing two. Dunbar got two Kiwanis hits, with Lee South and Tom Deasy getting other doubles. Dunn fanned one and walked two but lasted the route, allowing nine hits.

MONDAY

The Lions bunched four of their eight hits, including RBI doubles by Mike Beall, Pat White and Nick Krisfalusy in the first inning to subdue the Menlo Florists 6-2, sending the Florists down to their first loss.

Five runs came in, two on a costly error, that gave Ron Guglielmetti the win and Dave Robertson the loss, both going the distance. Guglielmetti fanned 12 but walked ten. Jeff Ayres singled in one Florist run in the third and Don Heller the other in the fifth. White blasted another double in the third and scored on Krisfalusy's second hit, a single.

SATURDAY

The Florists pulled a three-run binge out of the hat in the sixth to unseat Ironclad Golf Covers 3-2. Dick Gautschi singled in one, after which Ironclad hurler Carl Pierce lost control and walked three straight batters to force in the runs that beat him. Heller struck out eight and allowed five hits to get credit for winning.

Greg Baker was well battered but survived an eight-hit assault to hurl Kiwanis to a 12-6 triumph over All-American Markets in the other Saturday game. The Kiwanians got only five hits off Dick Williams and loser Bill Sundquist, but gathered ten walks off them too, six off Sundquist in their six-run fourth. Lee South got two of the Kiwanis hits, with Greg Hodges getting two for AAM.

FRIDAY

White limited weak-hitting Lowe Realty to one hit in chucking the Lions to an easy 11-1 victory over the Realtors. He struck out nine and walked five, but three of those were in the second. Doug Wilson tripled for Lowe's only hit, followed by the three passes for the Realtor run.

Beall, White and Kaveln Beckum got two safeties each for the Lions and Mark Snedeker and RBI double. Ken Harhis lost, giving way to Tom Graves in the third.

THURSDAY

Rotary got a five-hit hurling job from righthander Chuck Cantwell to romp 8-5 over AAM. Market starter Hugh Smith didn't last out the first inning, giving up five walks and a single to Laverwell Kendall, good for four runs. Dan Orri finished up, although he was tagged for three more runs in the fourth. Earnest Woodard smacked a triple and double for the Marketmen.

WEDNESDAY

Lowe went on a spree to bomb Ironclad 13-1 in the first of three NL games Wednesday. Fifteen walks off three Golfer pitchers led to the destruction with starter Kevin Burns taking the loss. Wilson hit a two-run homer to highlight the six-hit Lowe attack. Harvey Whitehead won, going to route, whiffing seven and walking only one.

The Lions whipped AAM 10-5 behind Jack Courtney's eight-hitter, while banging out ten of their own. Again, Beall and Krisfalusy got two each and White bopped a bases-loaded double. Tim Klick had three singles for AAM and Kent Seltzer two, including a two-run double. Williams was the loser.

Two walks, Ron Stebbins' triple and Joe Guel's double got across the three runs in the fifth that the Menlo Florists needed to come back and beat Kiwanis 3-1. Paul Dunbar walked and Bill Herman doubled him home in the fourth to put the Kiwanians ahead temporarily. Guel beat Mike Nualla in a mound duel, fanning 11 and walking four. Nualla recorded 13 strikeouts and passed six. Each allowed three hits.

Pony League:

MAKES BOW

South Peninsula Pony League (13-14 year-olds) will open its second season Saturday with three games. The six - team loop this year is made up of three teams from Menlo Park, one from East Palo Alto, one from Palo Alto and one from Mountain View.

The East Palo Alto Lions will meet Ken's House of Pancakes at Nealon Park and the Menlo Mixers will play Ward's Plastering of Menlo Park at El Camino Park in Palo Alto, both starting at 9 a.m. Gleim Jewelers of Palo Alto meet Shoppers World of Mountain View at Nealon at noon.

Gleim is taking over for Palo Alto Sport Shop, the defending 1961 champions.

Oregon Trip Ahead:

Reds Blunder Near .500 Mark

Badly floundering and in danger of falling below .500 for the first time in four years, the Menlo Park Reds this weekend play the final two games before their five-day trek to Oregon.

Tomorrow night in a non-league game at Washington Park in Santa Clara, the Reds meet the San Mateo AmVets, who handed them an embarrassing 6-0 defeat last Tuesday.

Sunday at Flood Park the Reds make their first home El Camino League appearance of the season against the Mountain View Merchants. Friday night's game will start at 3, Sunday's at 1:30.

Rich Koeper will be the Reds' starting pitcher Friday night with Eddie Hoffacker in relief. Sunday it'll be Pete Cocconi.

Next Wednesday the Reds leave by car for their annual five-day road trip, this year taking them farther afield than ever before.

Menlo Park will play in Marysville Wednesday night, Lowell, Ore., Thursday night, Eugene, Ore., Friday night and, tentatively, in Roseville Saturday night and Placerville Sunday afternoon. The latter two games have not been confirmed yet, however.

As soon as the Reds return from the north they will plunge into their Santa Clara Night League schedule. Later in the summer the Reds' schedule, which may exceed 50 games this year, will include weekend trips to Santa Rosa, Lodi and San Luis Obispo, as well as an appearance in the State Semipro Tournament.

If the Reds lose Friday night, it will mark the first time in four years their record has been under .500. They have a 6-6 mark at present, but in their last three games—all losses—the Reds have been weak with the bat, in the field and on the mound.

The Reds have gone scoreless their last 24 innings at bat, including two consecutive shutout defeats after a string of 81 games without being shut out. In those three straight losses, Menlo pitchers have surrendered eight home runs.

In those 24 scoreless innings, Menlo has managed just 11 hits—all singles. Over the 12 games to date, the Reds have averaged more than four errors per.

Only bright spot in Sunday's 8-0 El Camino League opening loss to the San Carlos Merchants at Burton Park were three double plays by the combination of shortstop Rich Jeffries, second baseman Jim Harper and first baseman Bob Pleasant.

Art Amaya, who had never beaten the Reds in four previous starts, walked one and struck out nine and allowed only one man as far as third base. He allowed five hits, only one after the third. Amaya retired 20 of the last 22 men to face him.

The game was decided early as Fred Kara, Bob Stoll and Lee Ferrerra all drilled two-run homers off Koeper in the first two innings. Cocconi hurled five innings of good relief for Menlo, allowing just one run.

NorCal Tennis:

Alpine to Stage Big Tourney

Alpine Hills Tennis and Swimming Club's new tennis courts will get their first full test of tournament competition over the next two weekends, starting this Saturday, with the start of the second annual Portola Valley and Northern California Tennis Championship Tourney.

Entries closed Tuesday evening for the tournament, with Club manager Sandy MacKay expecting around 225 signups. Official referee is Jack Tunnell.

Eliminations will run through this weekend, with semifinals and championship rounds next weekend. All matches will be two out of three sets.

The new courts got their baptism last weekend, with four San Francisco 49er footballers playing an exhibition set before a crowd of 500. The doubles team of John Brodie and Eddie Dove outclassed Matt Hazeltine and Monty Clark 10-4, with Brodie's powerhouse drives and Dove's volleys proving too much for the bigger and less agile linemen. Young autograph hounds outnumbered all others, but all went away happy.

An added attraction was a swimming exhibition by former Olympic swimming champion Chris Von Saltza and Clyde Devine's "All-American Aqua Follies," featuring ten-year-old swimmers doing one-and-a-half gainers and trampoline acts.

More Later:

Rec Dept. Opens Summer Slate With Swimming, Tennis Signups

Menlo Park Recreation Department's large bag of summer activities is being opened just a crack this week for registration for the first sessions of swimming and tennis classes.

Registration for both of these will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon at the rec office in Burgess Gym. Classes in both will begin Monday, June 18 and will include classes for beginning, intermediate and advanced levels.

This is the first of four summer sessions for the two. Children's swimming lessons will be given Monday through Friday for two weeks. The adult session will go three weeks, with classes meeting Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings. The tennis session will be for two weeks.

Future sessions will begin July 9, July 30 and August 20 and also will include all three proficiency levels, with no carryover from precious sessions required.

Most of the other rec dept. summer sessions will begin later this month. Children's nature study and playground crafts classes, elementary and high school orchestra, band and chorus and dance classes will register at Burgess Gym June 18.

A drawing and painting classes for adults and children and a mosaics class for adults will start on June 27, with registrations taken at the first class.

Schedule Changed:

Tigers Lead Atherton LL

Atherton's new Little League revised its schedule somewhat this week and for the rest of the season will play doubleheaders on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The single games originally set for Tuesdays and Thursdays were consolidated on Wednesdays to cut down the number of trips needed to install the outfield fence at the Encinal School diamond.

The first Wednesday twin bill was played last night, with the loop-leading August Associates Tigers taking on the last-place Shopper's World Pirates and the second-place Swanson Construction Braves meeting the third-place Elena Ave. Giants, but results weren't in by presstime.

This Saturday's double-header starts at 9 a.m. with the Giants against the Pirates. The Braves and Tigers tangle at 10:30. Next Wednesday it'll be Pirates and Braves at 5 p.m. and the Giants and Tigers at 6:30.

Righthander Gene Dark turned in his second 14-strikeout performance of the young season Saturday, steering the Tigers past the Giants 8-0 in a battle of "name" pitchers. The San Francisco Giants manager's son beat Mike Tittle, son of football's Y.A. Dark walked only one. Tittle gave way to Tom Carter in the fourth after being battered for four runs in the first and three in the third.

The Giants got only one hit, a double by Carter in the fourth. Dark and Gary Taramaschi doubled and Pat Curtis tripled for the winners.

Bill Diggs threw a two-hitter at the Pirates Saturday to post the Braves to a 4-1 victory. Four Pirate errors were very horrmful to loser Darby Fuerst, who struck out 13 and gave up just five hits himself. Diggs fanned seven and passed only one. Terry Church got two of the Braves hits, both singletons.

It was Tom McGuire who supplied the good pitching for the Tigers Thursday, with a sparkling one-hit 10-2 job over the Braves. He struck out ten and walked three. Loser Dave Andrews set 11 down on strikes, but walked 14, some of them setting up a grand-slam homer by Curtis in the fourth. Vic Ferrari doubled in one of the Braves' two runs in the fifth for their only safety.

At Boosters Fete:

Local LDS Stages First Round of All-Church Golf Tournament

First annual golf tournament of the Palo Alto Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon) will be held Saturday at Hillview Golf Course, San Jose.

The tournament, part of a church-wide golf program, will have Junior and Senior division play and will be based on gross medal score. Junior division is for golfers under 18. All others will compete in the Senior division, according to Walter Muir of Sunnyvale, tournament director and activities counselor for the Stake which includes Menlo Park, Palo Alto, Los Altos, Mountain View and Sunnyvale.

Participation is limited to church members. An estimated 40 golfers are expected to enter this first golf event.

The Palo Alto Stake champions will compete in a district (San Francisco to Monterey) playoff. Northern California winners will play in the church's tournament scheduled for July 19 and 20 at Willow Creek Country Club in Salt Lake City.

Each of the 11 Stakes in the San Francisco Bay Area may enter one player and a three-player team in each division.

Although golf has been included in the LDS sports program for several years, this is the first Palo Alto Stake competition.

Qualified golfers interested in entering the tournament should contact Richard Harris Jr. of Menlo Park, DA 6-5825.

New Singer Takes Over Musical Lead

A rising young star in the musical comedy world, Carole Warren, will take over the leading role of Ella Peterson in the Comedia production of "Bells Are Ringing," beginning this Saturday evening. Lila Lloyd, previously seen in the part, has left to fill a night club engagement.

Carole Warren, although only 21, already has played the leading roles in such musical productions as "Damn Yankees," "Annie Get Your Gun," "The Pajama Game," "South Pacific" and "Guys and Dolls." She has toured in musical productions throughout California, Arizona and other western states.

On television she has worked locally in San Jose, Carmel, Monterey, and Salinas, and was one of seven finalists out of 1100 auditioning for the Tennessee Ernie Ford Show.

Besides a varied acting and singing career, she is also a dancer. She will play Ella Peterson at the Comedia Theater on Saturday nights and on Fridays she will be seen in the forthcoming production of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," both of which will be a part of the Comedia's first Summer Festival of Comedy.

BUNT HURTS . . . . . . Andy Cattaneo of Menlo Mufflers dropped down a perfect sacrifice bunt against Lindsay in the ninth inning and catcher Herm Munill had to go to first base with the play. The bunt advanced Ted Shreve of the Mufflers to second and he later scored the winning run in the 4-3 Babe Ruth League thriller. Rick Deutscher of Lindsay was the losing hurler and Chris Courter won it. —Recorder photo

Rex, Jensen Set Leading Pace; Mufflers in 3rd Extra Inning Tilt

Rex Floor Coverings and the Jensen Importers had little difficulty in keeping their Babe Ruth League slates clean through Saturday and stay atop the standings.

The Floormen handed Calso its third straight loss Saturday at Flood Park, belting out 14 hits in a 17-4 slaughter. Behind 9-0 in the sixth, Calso scored four times, only to have Rex come back with eight in the seventh.

Tad d'Arc wielded the big bat for the winners with four hits, including a double, and four RBI. Winning pitcher Chico Roberts had three batted in. On the mound he fanned 12 and walked ten before Bob Hagman relieved him in the seventh. Ken Cottrell was the loser, followed to the hill by Bob Grisak and Hal Williams. Dave Young slugged a three-bagger for Rex and Tom Jenks and Skip Jones doubled for Calso.

Righthander Colby Howe had only one bad inning, a three-run second, in going all the way for the Importers at Burgess Park, setting Lowe Realty down on five safeties, three of them singles by Dick Brumm. Phil Harrold's triple, an error and three walks let in three Jensen runs in the fifth that handed Rick DeZur the loss. Randy Demeter went the first two and Scott Snedeker the last two frames for the Realtors. Bob Abbott also tripled for Jensen, Harrold had two hits.

R-C Electric picked up its first win in four tries at Woodside, pushing over three runs in the last of the eighth on Brad Eaton's bases-loaded double. Trailing 4-3 in the last of the seventh, the Electricians tied it up on Bob Shreve's RBI single.

Wally Dean's homer and two hits by Ron Starr helped the J & M nine to its early lead, 4-1 after five. Bob Fairbank was the winning hurler, Bill Giesler the loser.

The hard-plugging Menlo Mufflers went into their third extra-inning game in four starts at the Vets Hospital field before pulling off a 4-3 decision over Lindsay Construction.

Although the Mufflers smashed ten hits off Ricky Deutscher, the lefty still was strong until the ninth, when Leu Vanoli squeezed in Ted Shreve with a good sacrifice bunt. Deutscher was too late for the play at home and the run stood up through the Lindsay ninth. Righthander Cris Courter doled out four hits to Lindsay, also lasting the route and taking the triumph. Deutscher's double was the only telling blow off him. Rod Pommes and Bruce Cafferata each got three hits off Deutscher.

Peninsula Lithograph kept Fox & Carskadon winless at Ravenswood, belting them 10-7. Ermanno Bruno collected a pair of hits for the Litho nine, which got nine off Wilbur Jackson. Ernest Bryant had two for the losers, including a home run. Southpaw John Havard was the winner.

Red Cottage and Bohannon each got eight hits at Kelly Park, but the Cottagers got better mileage out of theirs to take a 6-1 decision and give Greg Ott the victory. John Hofferd got four hits, all singles, for Red Cottage, and Steve Bush got two. Mel Easley's double was the big one for Bohannon. Jim Williams was the mound victim.

THURSDAY'S GAMES

d'Arc was the winning pitcher and leading hitter with two bingles in taking Rex to a 7-2 win over Lindsay at Kelly Park Thursday. A five-run third frame sank Bob Crump, with four Lindsay errors helping.

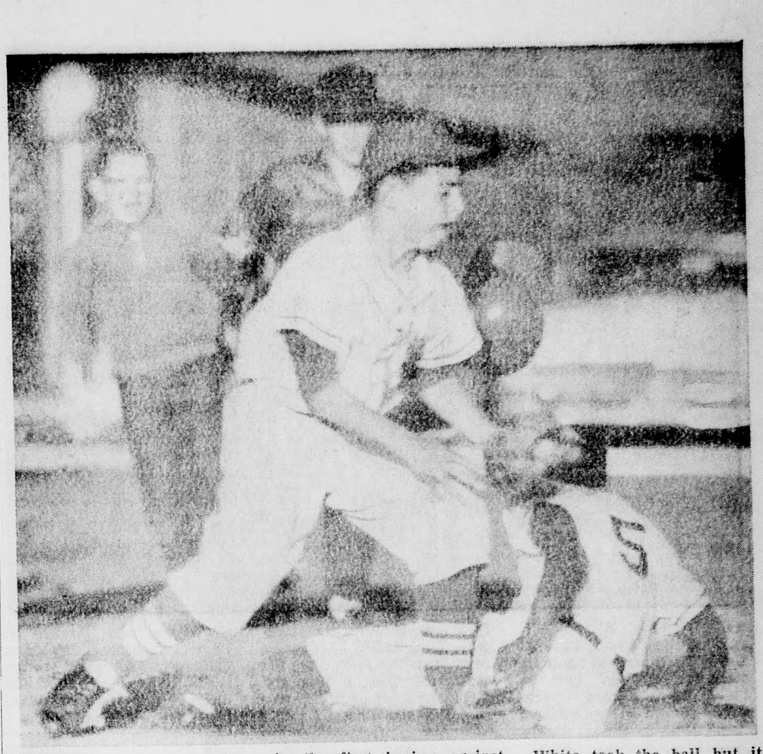

Johnson and Mape broke into the winning column with an eight-inning 8-5 victory over the Mufflers. The Mufilers' four-run seventh tied it up, with Vanoli driving in the tie-maker, but Hank Needham won it for the Constructors with a grand-slam homer in the eighth off Dave Davis. Ron Starr was the winner. He and Needham each got two hits for the winners, along with Dean, who had a triple. Tim Fischer got three hits for the Mufflers and Steve Chase two, including a triple.

Pen-Litho unhooked Calso 6-4 at Flood with a pair of three-run innings, although each club got only four hits. Dick Moldre hit a double and single for Calso and John Beebe had two hits for the Bottlers, but Pete Nadell hung on for the victory over Bob Matutat.

Righthander Mark Ackerman struck out ten in a four-hitter that took Lowe to a 6-3 victory over Red Cottage at Burgess. Jim Hicks tripled for the Realtors, who scored four times in the second to put it away early. Dick Vohs homered for the Cottagers and Steve Bush had a pair of hits. Bob Stewart sustained the setback.

Bohannon turned it on R-C Electric at Ravenswood, belting out a 12-6 win. Jesse Thompson was the winning chucker, Brian Conner the loser. Gary Hamilton led Bohannon with three hits, one a double. Williams got two, as did Conner.

Jensen scored in all but one inning to shade Fox & Carskadon 8-6 at Woodside. Harrold, Ernie Berg and George Coon each got a pair of singles for Jensen, with Ken Baker and Greg Kendall getting two apiece for F & C. Bill McMonigle got the victory, Bob Wimmer the loss.

THEFT . . . . . . of third base was no sweat for the Menlo Florists' Willie Tate (5), who made it in the first inning against the Lions in Monday's National Little League battle. Lion third baseman Pat White took the ball but it was too late. The Lions won 6-2. —Recorder photo

A CLOSE CALL . . . . . . at third base, but the Tigers' Pat Curtis was in safe for a triple in Atherton Little League action against the Giants Saturday at Encinal School. Umpire's hand in upper right corner signals safe. Feet in lower left belong to a young spectator. Giants third baseman tagging Curtis is Dan McGanney. Tigers won 8-0. —Recorder photo

THE BALL . . . . . . was nowhere where Seybold Realty catcher Bill Mayer could reach it in this sixth-inning play Saturday after it skipped by him. That's Van de Sande's Joey Chafey sliding in safely for the final Clothier run on Joe McMonigle's double. But Seybold finally won the American Little League tussle 6-4.

Camp Yomah Registration Goes Higher

Following a very successful open house and come-see-tour of Hilltop, the site of Camp Yomah country day camp at Searsville Lake Park in Woodside, registration for the popular children's summer program operated by the Peninsula Jewish Community Center has exceeded last year's enrollment and is reaching maximum enrollment for the three sessions the camp will operate.

In 1961, Camp Yomah served 220 campers in two sessions. This year's enrollment is nearing the 250 mark and by the time of the opening of the first session on Friday, June 22, it is expected that more than 300 children will be enrolled.

The Camp Yomah day camp program is designed to serve children 5½ to 11. Boys and girls are assigned to groups of ten under the supervision of a counselor, assisted by a junior counselor. Each group enjoys a full program of swimming, hiking, cookouts, arts and crafts, campcraft, nature and conservation, songs, dancing and music.

Inquiries about registration may be made by calling the Camp office, LY 1-4433. Residents of the South Peninsula area can call the extension office at DA 6-8524 any afternoon Monday to Thursday.

Stanford Players Do Good Job With 'Measure for Measure'

The Stanford Players' production of Shakespeare's "Measure For Measure" is a compelling interpretation of a difficult play.

Director James Clancy, helped by a spacious, adaptable set, manages to smooth out the uneven texture of the play and to clarify any of its subtleties.

Critics have stated that "Measure For Measure" is unpleasant to modern audiences because of its central question: When a woman is offered the choice of saving a man's life at the price of her own chastity, what should she do? The modern answer is obvious, but Shakespeare's Isabella refuses vigorously and angrily. Upon her refusal the plot turns, and the play is resolved.

Clancy, however, emphasizes a more important moral question: the abuse of power. The Duke of Vienna, abandoning his position to a deputy, Angelo pretends to leave Vienna, but instead disguises himself as a friar. Under this disguise, he observes all the play's characters and resolves their destinies.

For this reviewer, the real evil in this play lies not in Angelo, nor in the vulgar Lucio, nor in the bawdy houses of Vienna, but in the duke who manuevers his subjects like puppets and who prolongs their illusions with shocking cruelty until the final curtain.

The moral problem he represents is still unsolved and there are numerous modern parallels. "Measure for Measure" for all its unevenness is Shakespeare at his most mature.

Acting honors must go first to Richard Risso as Angelo. His scenes with Isabella, well played by Bonda Lewis, were of a very high quality. He has the rare ability to command attention when others are holding the stage.

Herbert Kennedy, as the duke, was anything but the "tall, dark dummy" of Van Doren. He played his scenes as a sinister comedian, dealing out his justice with deadly relish. However, some of his best lines were swallowed and his humor was often too broad.

Outstanding in smaller roles were Michael Percival as Claudio, Walter Brown as the Provost and Robert Sinclair as Escalus. Richard Hayes' setting and Douglas Russell's costumes contributed much to the play's effect.

Features Marjorie Craig:

Gallery House Opens Exhibit Of Local Artist' Work June 25

A new Gallery House exhibit featuring the work of three local artists, Marjorie Craig, Norman Fontaine and Ruth Waters, opened Tuesday at Gallery Touse, 200 Alpine Road in Ladera. Their work will be on display through June 24 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The Gallery is closed Monday.

Ruth Waters is exclusively a wood-carver, and included in her show are pieces in Honduras mahogany, teak, poplar, oak, Philippine mahogany and both English and black walnut, all variations on the human figure.

She has exhibited many places in the bay area, among them, the Peninsula Art Association Show at Hillsdale and the San Mateo County Fair and had a one-man show last year at the Belmont Art Gallery. She recently demonstrated her carving at the Redwood City Women's Club annual exhibit for their "art in action" presentation.

Marjorie Craig of Menlo Park, another young artist, who has had mostly water colors in past shows, has for this new exhibit done tissue coulages in very vivid colors.

In 1951, Mrs. Craig won a scholarship at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. She received her teaching credentials in art at Fresno State and taught art for three years at Fresno Junior High.

She has exhibited at the California State Fair where she won a $100 first prize in watercolors in 1955 and has had one-man shows at Kepler's Book Store, at the Palo Alto Community Theater and at the YMCA in Palo Alto. She also has won honorable mentions at the Fresno County Fair and three first prizes at the King's County Fair.

Norman Fontaine paints entirely in oils. The first paint ink he did was accepted in the seventh annual exhibit at the Museum of Art in San Francisco and he has exhibited in many places locally, including the Jack London Square Show in Oakland. Many of his paintings express a philosophical idea.

Couples Exchanging Early Spring Vows Lead A Wedding-Filled June

Time and Place Confirmed:

Peninsula Debutante Ball Becomes Fixture

"Christmas Holidays" will mean something very special to seventeen young women this year when they return from their various schools to bow to society at the second Peninsula Debutante Ball.

The preponderance of girls named as this year's debutantes are from the Menlo Park-Atherton-Woodside area and a majority will be away at school during the fall.

Planners of the Peninsula Ball have chosen to present the debutantes at the Palo Alto Hills Golf and Country Club on Dec.22.

Benefitting the Family Service Association, professional counselors to families with problems, the ball will be preceded by the usual round of parties that will fill debs' calendars from the time they step off their trains and planes until the time they return to school.

Clark-Altman Nuptials

Gail Patricia Clark became the bride of James David Altman in a ceremony conducted on June 3 at Morris Chapel at University of Pacific.

Gail, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cy John Clark, enjoyed an excitement-packed weekend. At the rehearsal dinner given the evening before the wedding by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Altman of Honolulu, the bride-elect was congratulated on reaching her majority.

For her wedding Gail chose a peau de soie wedding gown fashioned with a boat neckline and chapel train. Seed pearls decorated the bodice and were repeated on the lace crown that held a double silk illusion veil. Orchids and lily-of-the-valley composed the bridal bouquet.

Named as Gail's maid of honor, Judith Polach was gowned in coral silk shantung sheath as were bridesmaids Leslie Hoff, Karen Dunlavy and Mrs. Richard Roberts. Each girl wore a matching flower veil and carried a spray of coral carnations.

The benedict's brother, Jack Altman, stood with him as best man while ushering duties were assumed by Howard Trekell, Winston Ing, Kirk Bowman and Stephen Clark.

Entertaining about 250 guests at the Ranch Lodge in Stockton at a reception honoring her daughter and new son-in-law, Mrs. Clark wore an ashes of roses peau de soie silk ensemble and a pale rose flower veil. Mrs. Altman wore a toast silk suit and rose toque.

Gail is a graduate of Palo Alto High School and Cubberley High School. While at UOP, the bridegroom was a Phi Sigma Kappa.

Gail's immediate family, in addition to the brother, who served as an usher, includes Mrs. Sophia Clark of Menlo Park, her paternal grandmother.

Linda Fletcher Is Wed

Receiving best wishes and congratulations before a vine-laced stone fireplace. Mr. and Mrs. John Lane Healy (she is the former Linda Louise Fletcher) were honored following their May 26 wedding at a reception given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fletcher.

Linda and John exchanged vows at a high noon ceremony conducted at Church of the Nativity, Menlo Park. The bride chose a wedding gown of ivory peau de soie fashioned with a scoop neckline and long sleeves. A petal-shaped skirt and bow formed a bustle over the chapel train which complimented a bouffant silk illusion veil fastened by an ivory Dior rose. The bridal bouquet was a shower of stephanotis and white roses.

Serving her sister as maid of honor, Nancy Jean Fletcher wore mint green organza with a short overskirt. Her gown was accessorized by a hair covering of a matching bow decorated with a flaring veil. A colonial bouquet of yellow carnations and roses completed her ensembles.

Bridesmaids Susan Morey and Mrs. Jerry Ellis were dressed in gowns identical to the one chosen for Nancy.

Best man for John was James Fisher and his ushers were W. Thomas Fletcher, brother of the bride, and Richard Needles. His parents are Dr. and Mrs. Walter J. Healy of Atherton. Mrs. Vernon Lindo of Jamaica is his sister.

The new benedict attended Bellarmine and San Mateo Junior College. He and Linda will establish their home in Burlingame after a honeymoon at Lake Berryessa.

At the reception Mrs. Fletcher received her guests in a rose-mauve silk sheath and jacket, choosing a matching hat of large roses. Mrs. Healy chose a brown and white print with matching hat and complimentary accessories.

45 Years of Service:

EPA Women's Club Follows Flexible Annual Growth Pattern

By DAVE GOODWIN

The East Palo Alto Women's Club is a remarkable organization.

The club, founded in 1917, has 37 members. And 27 of them (forgive us, ladies) are more than 67 years old.

But there's no dearth of vim or vigor in this group.

Payments on the club building at Bay Road and Oakwood Drive were completed earlier this year. And the club's financial records now show nothing but black ink.

The club has been doing so well with money matters under current president Mrs. Birney Clark that the ladies are able to donate use of the building to worthy causes.

Another honor came to the local club recently when Mrs. Albert J. Crichton, who moved to this area about a year ago, was elected president of the Golden Gate District of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

The district includes 43 clubs with 4,200 members. It covers, Marin, San Francisco and San Mateo counties.

Mrs. Crichton is an East Palo Alto club member and also retains membership in the Millbrae club.

The Golden Gate district holds monthly meetings, she said, to discuss scholarships government legislation, philanthropies and other business.

Mrs. Crichton is the first East Palo Alto club member to hold the top post in the six years since the district was formed.

The family home is in Palo Alto. Mrs. Crichton's husband is an engineer with Pacific Telephone. She has three children — Mrs. B. E. Stigen, who is with her Army husband on Okinawa; a son, David, 16, and a daughter, Kathleen, 15.

The East Palo Alto club also draws members from Menlo Park, although most of the women are East Palo Alto residents.

The club, now 45 years old, retains many long-time members. Mrs. Amanda Collins, who keeps busy with club publicity and other activities, is a charter member. She's 87.

"We are doing well financially," Mrs. Clark said, "and have been able to donate use of the building to various groups. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, a rummage sale was held to benefit veterans services at the local hospital. And our members helped as salesladies."

The hall is also used free of charge by Girl Scouts who conduct rummage sales periodically.

Another unsung service is donation of the facilities to the well-baby clinic sponsored by the county health and welfare department.

Doctors and nurses volunteer their services on the second, third and fourth Thursday mornings of the month. Inoculations and medical care are given to tots under 1½ years of age who aren't able to have regular checkups.

This is Mrs. Clark's fourth year as club president.

"We hold regular meetings on the first Wednesday of the month. It's usually a pot luck affair," she said. "We're certainly interested in new members. We feel we have a lot to offer local women who want to be of service to the community and enjoy social events, too."

The club would also support a junior women's club if local women want to form one, she pointed out.

The club has garden, sewing and literature sections which meet regularly. The Merry League, a social group, gets together at various area restaurants once a month.

As if they didn't have enough irons in the fire, the local ladies are undertaking another task. But it's one that is dear to the hearts of most females — redecorating.

The interior of the clubhouse is the object of their attention.

Stanford Gallery:

Planned Art Exhibition Inspires Jade Ball Plan

Letters have gone to members of the Committee for Art at Stanford announcing date, Saturday, Sept. 22, of the Jade Ball to be held at the Palo Alto Hills Golf and Country Club. With the cool perfection of jade as its keynote, one of the most beautiful parties in Peninsula history is being planned under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert M. Kennedy of Atherton.

The purpose of the Jade Ball is the support of a major competitive exhibition in the fall at the Stanford Gallery. Inspiration for the ball came from a letter to Mrs. Ernest H. Sultan, chairman of the Committee for Art, from Dr. Robert R. Sears, dean of the humanities at Stanford University. "One of the things that I feel strongly Stanford should have," said Dr. Sears, "is a strong aura of excitement in artistic matters. Exhibitions are unquestionably one of the most important procedures for this, and exhibitions with purchase prizes of substantial size are even more provocative of interest. I see no reason why the university could not spearhead a movement directly comparable, in our area and during the next couple of centuries, to that created in Florence by the early Medicis."

The invitations which will be out in August will be embellished with calligraphy by Anna Wu Weakland, well-known Chinese artist of the Peninsula. Mrs. John Churchill will handle the reservations.

Mrs. Margaret Cotchett, chairman of door prizes, has asked Mrs. James E. O'Brien, who is currently traveling in the Orient, to select objects of art to be used for door prizes.

Frank James has been asked to serve as toastmaster and Mrs. Richard Gonzales is selecting a well-known dance orchestra and planning surprise entertainment for the evening.

Frank Stout and Mrs. Donald Thackeray, co-chairmen for decorations, will be aided by members of the American Institute of Interior Designers.

Treasurer for the Jade Ball will be H. E. Robison and Mrs. James Ransohoff is working with the Palo Alto Hills Club on supper menu and club facilities. Sponsor chairman is Mrs. O'Brien and publicity is being handled by Mrs. Paul Reinhardt.

Trip Tips Offered

Christian Women's Club of Palo Alto will meet for lunch on Thursday, June 14, at 12:30 p.m. at the Elks Club, 4249 El Camino Real, Palo Alto.

A packing demonstration by Mary Gordon of TWA is topical for those planning a trip to the Seattle World's Fair this summer. She will also show "treasures" from other lands.

Reservations for baby-sitting and luncheon may be made by calling Mrs. Niles Herron of Mountain View at 967-8804 or Mrs. Robert Golobic of San Jose at 253-5695.

Wilbur Antisdale of Oakland will be the speaker. Violinist John Nastari of Santa Clara will provide the music.

The Christian Women's Club of Palo Alto meets for lunch on the second Thursday of each month at the Elks Club. Items of special interest to homemakers, the best in Christian music, both vocal and instrumental, and outstanding and well-versed speakers present a program that is stimulating and thought provoking. All women are cordially invited.

Philoptohos Announces June 9 Tea

Ladies' Philoptohos of the Greek Orthodox Church of San Mateo County are planning a tea Saturday, June 9, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Nick Nicholson, 1636 Monte Corrino Way in Burlingame.

Guest of honor will be Mrs. D. Xintaras, mother of Rt. Rev. Zachary Xintaras.

The program for the afternoon will be flower arrangements by Mrs. Thodore Labhard of Burlingame.

Mrs. Gust Joanou, Mrs. Andrew Vlassis and Mrs. Nicholson will be the hostesses and Mrs. Gus Folas is chairman

Jr. Museum Elects Officers

Newly elected officers of the San Mateo County Junior Museum Auxiliary will be headed this year by Mrs. Walton Lawrence of San Mateo.

Appointive officers include Mrs. Mark Ryan of Atherton, outgoing president, who will head the public relations program for the group

Alums Take Summer Recess

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association of Palo Alto will hold its annual summer barbecue on Sunday afternoon, June 10, at the Westridge home of association vice president Mrs. Richard Redlick, 1010 Westridge Drive.

Kappas and their husbands are invited for swimming beginning at 2 p.m. with the steak dinner to be served at 5 o'clock.

The event is a benefit for th sorority chapter at San Jose State College and is the alumnae group's final social activity of the season. Junior and senior Kappas are among the committee members who are planning the affair. General chairman is Mrs. David J. Stone whose committee is composed of Mrs. Robert Cummings, Mrs. Walter Eversman, Mrs. Howard Stewart, Mrs. Morris Ashton of Atherton and Mrs. Redlick.

It is requested that reservations should be mailed to Mrs. John Julius, 2150 Ashton Ave., Menlo Park.

Advance Preparation:

Tempting Fare is Partner For Successful Parties

Guiding lights behind the Beaux Arts section group created by the Atherlons (Menlo-Atherton Newcomers graduates) are Mr. and Mrs. W. Gregory Hine.

Well versed in the graphic arts and enthusiastic about passing along their enthusiasm and ability, Marian and Greg Hine have acted as host couple and mentors for the local group who have delved into several facets of creativity and whose plans include the examination of many more fields.

BENEFIT AID

The significance of the group can be more fully explained by the help they have given to benefit parties in the way of creating backdrops. One of their projects was creating an Italian street scene for a Menlo-Atherton Newcomers benefit show. Greg Hine created the designs and Marion added the color. Peninsula Volunteers later picked up the sets and used them for a second fund-raising affair.

Marian has done decorations for a Newcomers Christmas dinner-dance; both she and her husband worked on the background for a lavish benefit given for the benefit of Crippled Children.

They hope to expand their contributions through the Beaux Arts group. Procedure would be that a large benefit requesting such help with art work could work through the Atherlons section. Members of Beaux Arts would not only contribute in community service but would have a practice area for the skills.

INTERESTS

The Hines' Menlo Park apartment contains a modest smattering of the art work the two have created. The couple's home reflects a sort of relaxed but built-in organization that allows them to indulge their enthusiasms. An avid bridge player, Mrs. Hines plays duplicate bridge with the Atherlons as well as Mr. and Mrs. Bridge. They were also members of the Mr. and Mrs. Social group and the summer couples' swimming section.

Gregarious and outgoing, Marian Hine loves to entertain and disciplines herself to menus that can be prepared a day in advance.

A tried and true favorite is:

Ham
Orange Glazed Sweet Potatoes
Peas and Onions
Garlic Bread
Spinach Salad
Fruit and Cheese
Coffee

Marian Hines' approach to ham cookery is to put a 6-pound roast in the oven at noon in a 250-degree oven. She uses no seasoning during cooking, but sometimes serves the ham with horseradish.

* * *

ORANGE GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

Boil 6 sweet potatoes, drain, peel and place in greased baking dish. Combine 1 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon orange rind, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 3 tablespoons melted butter, ⅓ cup brown sugar, ⅓ cup white sugar and a pinch of salt. Cook syrup until thickened. Pour over potatoes and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

* * *

Peas and onions served with the ham are delicious. Cooking method is a specialty of the house and once more provides peace of mind for the cook.

With the ham already in the oven, Mrs. Hine prepared small white onions also for oven cooking and adds salt and pepper and a "snitch" of water. These are allowed to cook by themselves for about an hour with the addition of butter. An hour before estimated serving time (though exact timing is not a necessity), peas and more butter are added. By doing her vegetable dish in the oven, Marian avoids a dish that must be watched and timed precisely, a disadvantage when conversation is too good to interrupt.

* * *

RICE CASSEROLE

If this is used as a main dish, 2 cups of chopped ham may be added.

Heat 3 tablespoons olive oil Saute 1 medium chopped onion. Add ½ cup chopped celery and ¼ cup green pepper, also chopped. Cook 5 minutes. If ham is to be added, the addition should be made at this time and cooking time extended 5 minutes. Add ¾ cup raw rice. Cook 2 minutes. Add 1¼ cups chicken broth or boullion. Then add ¼ cup dry sherry, 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire and salt and pepper to taste. Bring to boil before pouring into greased casserole. Cover and bake in 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. Strain 1 4-ounce can drained chopped mushrooms and add, also 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and a can of chopped ripe olives. The last cooking requires another 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven.

* * *

RAW SPINACH SALAD

2 bunches raw spinach
(may substitute 1 head romaine lettuce for 1 bunch spinach)
¼ pound bacon, chopped and fried
6 green onions, chopped (stems, too)
2 tomatoes, chopped
½ pint sour cream
Salt and pepper to taste

Sour cream and salt and pepper are added immediately before serving.

IDEAL FOR SUMMER . . .
. . . entertaining is the recipe worked out by Mrs. W. Gregory Hine of Menlo Park. Making guests feel thoroughly at home can be more easily accomplished if dinner preparations appear effortless, according to Marian Hine, who uses the axiom as a yardstick when planning company menus.

Recent Nuptials Told

Lawra Dianne Long became the bride of Carlton Robert Lindeman in a May 19 wedding conducted at Park Wedding Chapel, Reno, Nevada.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Long and a graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School. A past honored queen of Job's Daughters, Bethel 234, Lawra complemented her white wedding ensemble with an orchid and stephanotis corsage which she carried on a white Jobie's Bible.

Acting as attendants for the newlyweds were Jerry and Norma Scian, who made the trip to Reno as did the bride's parents, her father escorting the bride to the altar.

Both Lawra and Carlton attended Menlo-Atherton High School. Lawra has two sisters, Katherine and Patricia Long. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lindeman of East Palo Alto are the new bridegroom's parents. Mrs. Janet Nottevaum of San Diego is his sister.

Art Academy Offers Two Sessions

Palo Alto Academy of the Arts will offer two summer sessions this year at their relatively new headquarters at 385 Golden Hills Drive, Portola Valley.

Two four-week sessions are scheduled: the first from July 2 to July 27 and the second from July 30 to Aug. 24.

Classes in painting, clay, design and sculpture are staggered by age level and experience. Further information may be obtained by phoning 851-0658.

Nativity Guild Elects Board

New officers of Nativity Guild Parish were feted at on installation breakfast on Sunday, June 3, at the Marie Antoinette Inn in Menlo Park.

Outgoing President Mrs. Burton L. Rogers presided as the newly-elected officers were introduced to participate in an impressive candlelight ceremony.

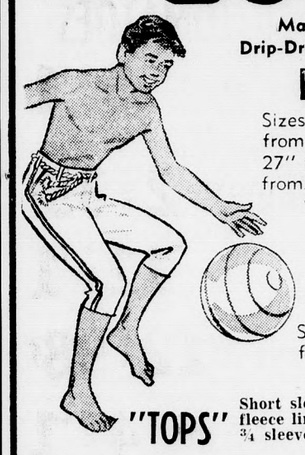

Leading the guild in its many activities for the coming year are Mrs. Richard L. Speed, president; Mrs. Martin B. McLoughlin, vice president; Mrs Donald Klick, recording secretary; Mrs. John H. Gertridge as corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Richard E. Blackman, treasurer.

Future events already in the planning stage are a Back to School barbecue, rummage sale, Day of Recollection and dinner dance.

Proceeds from all Guild activities benefit the parish as well as Nativity School, attended by 400 children

After returning from a wedding trip to the Napa Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Keith Bell Jr. have established a home in Menlo Park.

The couple was married earlier this month in a candlelight ceremony at the First Congregational Church.

The bride, the former Joyce Evelyn Padgett of Menlo Park, wore a street length dress of white re-embroidered Alencon lace with a Sabrina neckline and scalloped hemline. Her shoulder-length veil was attached to a circle of pearls and flowers.

Joyce carried a crescent shaped bouquet of white orchids, bouvardia, lily of the valley, stephanotis and ivy.

Sheath dresses of white chiffon over silk floral print in shades of orange, yellow and green, were worn by Mrs Sharon Leonhart, the matron of honor, and Nancy Dolle, cousin of the bride, as brides maid. They added green headpieces and carried bouquets of orange roses, gold carnations and ivy.

The male contingent included Paul Hale of Menlo Park, the best man, and Dow Owen, also of Menlo Park and William Loveless, ushers.

The bride is employed by Allstate Insurance Company in Menlo Park. Owen is a graduate of Menlo School and served in the U.S. Navy. His sister is Mrs. Robert Jensen of Atherton.

'ROUND CAMPUS

By MAL BYBEE

As the year draws to a close, many thoughts and words ring through the halls here at Menlo Atherton. For some, there are regrets of leaving a fine school and thus ending their four year stay here at M-A; for most, there is a feeling of a well spent year. Summer and its activities are the chief topic of conversation—conversations ranging from talk of full time work in preparation for future years of schooling to trips abroad and around the world for fun in the sun in foreign ports.

A hurried rundown on recent parties includes a surprise birthday party for Bill Beckers at Barbara Apgar's house, a Tarquin bash at Richard Kohler's and a Sires get-together at Joe Engler's.

The Memorial Day holiday now in the past, saw the Tarquin club venture into a water skiing fiesta and a Sires beach party.

This last weekend will see a dance at Burgess Gym on Friday night. It's the Menlo Park Teen Club's annual get-acquainted dance, and is open to both members and non-members. The Teen Club will continue throughout the summer with many worthwhile activities including weekly drop-ins, camping trips. Ending the summer will be the famed Country Fair.

Friday night saw another Tarquin party at Tom Dallas', and on Saturday night Sires got together at Mike Wellman's.

The most noteworthy event in recent weeks has been saved for last, however, and that was the annual Junior Prom, held May 29 at the Palo Alto Hills Golf and Country Club. Many thanks and many congratulations are in order for the decoration committee, and indeed all who made this beautiful tradition come true for another year.

King-Phillips Betrothal

Chi Omega sorority sisters at UCLA learned of the engagement of Lindsey Anne King to Lt. David J. Phillips, USAF, when she passed a silver tray on which were arranged tiny rings tied with blue and white satin ribbon, centered by her engagement ring.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan W. King of Santa Monica, formerly of Menlo Park. Lindsey is a graduate of Menlo-Atherton High School and attended elementary schools here.

Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Phillips of Burbank.

A member of Spurs, Bruin Belles and Phidelphias, Lindsey has also served as president of her sorority.

Lt. Phillips served as student body president at Burbank High School and played on the varsity football team at the United States Air Force Academy.

The couple plans to be married on June 30 in Santa Monica.

Gaspar de Portola:

DAR Chapter Taps Officers

Mrs. Bernard D. Benz has been elected to a second term as regent of Gaspar de Portola Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. A junior member, Mrs. Benz has also served the chapter as public relations chairman, junior membership chairman and first vice regent.

Mrs. Benz has been a member of DAR since 1957 and is also a member of Anne Bradstreet Chapter, Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century. She is the newly appointed senior state chairman of the quarterly newsletter of the California State Society, Children of the American Revolution. Mrs. Benz and the chapter's other new officers were installed by Mrs. Arthur F. Strehlow, state assistant recording secretary.

Another junior member, Mrs. James E. Mathiott, is the chapter's new first regent. Mrs. Mathiott is a former CAR and trasnferred to the local group from her DAR chapter in Olympia, Wash. She will also serve as chapter program chairman.

Mrs. Vard F. Stieglitz of Menlo Park is second vice regent and chairman of hostesses.

Other officers include Mrs. George Bennethum, chaplain; Mrs. Neta M. Baiuey, recording secretary; Mrs. Fred Clement corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Charles C. Thomas, treasurer, and her sister, Mrs. John F. Roberts Jr., is historian.

The office of librarian is held by Mrs. Fred Kamphoefner of Menlo Park. Librarian of the California State Society, DAR, Mrs. Louise M. Rankin, will serve as chapter director, as will Mrs. H. C. Wilmot and Mrs. C. Blair McCord of Menlo Park. Mrs. McCord hostessed the chaper's June executive board meeting at her Sharon Heights home.

At a recent ceremony at Stanford University, Mrs. Benz presented the DAR Army ROTC award to Cadet Captain John Orchard for his outstanding contribution to the AROTC. A native of Colorado, Cadet Orchard now makes his home in South San Francisco. He is majoring in history and has applied for a commission in the Regular Army. Cadet Orchard plays catcher on the Stanford baseball team.

The next meeting of Gaspar de Portola Chapter will be held Friday, June 15, and will be a Flag Day picnic in honor of DAR homemaking award winners at the Palo Alto home of Mrs. W. Allen Rabbett. The group will meet first at 11:30 a.m. for a brief ceremony at the El Palo Alto Redwood by the Southern Pacific railroad tracks and then proceed to the picnic.

CBPW Plan June Dinner

Christian Business and Professional Women will hold their June dinner on June 12 at 6:30 p.m. at El Rancho restaurant, 3901 El Camino Real, Palo Alto.

A three-way program will be offered. John Hoyte, an engineer with Hewlett-Packard and a world-traveler, will be speaker for the evening. Two years ago Hoyte appeared in the pages of Life Magazine in a story describing his trip across the Alps.

A fashion show of summer clothes for business girls will be presented by a Woodside specialty shop.
